One of the outstanding pictures of the year, "Moulin Rouge," directed by E. H. Dupont, who produced us "Variety," is now showing at the Columbia Theatre. It is said that this is the most spectacular production that even Dupont has ever made.

A feature of the picture is the presentation of the actual sensational and daring Moulin Rouge revue which is seen on the very stage that has for years been the leading attraction for visitors from all over the world. The other interior scenes were made at the famous Elstree Studios in London.

There is an intensely interesting and dramatic theme which involves the love of an aristocratic young Frenchman for his fiancée's mother, a famous Parisian stage star. The picture is filled with thrills and joyous gaiety.

Barthelmess Makes Debut In "Talkies"

Appears at Capitol Theatre This Week in "Weary River"

Popular Screen Star Gains Further Success in Talking Pictures

Richard Barthelmess has at last made his debut in talking pictures. In his newest First National starring vehicle, "Weary River," he is now appearing at the Capitol Theatre.

Silent or otherwise, "Weary River" would have been adjudged a great picture. It is one of those rare Barthelmess characterizations which are expected from him and which he has delivered in "Mable David," "The Patent Leather Kid," and more recently in "The Noose" and "The Wheel of Chance."

But in addition to Barthelmess's usual splendid screen presence, his unmatched pantomime talents are abetted to an amazing degree by the use of his voice. Audiences will be surprised to hear the highly pleasing quality of his voice in "Weary River." He plays the song, "Weary River," on the piano with excellent feeling and respect for its sentimentality.

DOUBLE BILL IS FEATURE AT COLISEUM

Mildred Page Players Will Appear All Week on Stage in "Companionate Marriage"

D. MacLean, Popular Movie Comedian, Has Leading Role in "The Carnation Kid"

An attractive double bill of stage and screen attractions has been arranged for this week at the Coliseum Theatre, and to-night will see the Mildred Page Players in "Companionate Marriage" on the stage and Douglas MacLean in "The Carnation Kid" on the screen for the first time this week. This bill will be presented every evening, the Players appearing at 8.30 o'clock.

In this week's attraction the Players will appear in a modern story, as the title of the play suggests. The plot is a good one, and throughout the play run a number of comic turns that are bound to please all who attend the theatre this week. There will not be a dull moment in "Companionate Marriage," and Miss Page promises several interesting tips to married couples. Miss Ruth Albright, who for the last two weeks has been brilliantly cast in the leading comedienne's role, will again be seen to good advantage this week. This clever little actress has proved herself a first-class comedienne, and in her two comic roles since coming to Victoria has given splendid performances.

Chinese Government Dismisses Gen. Chang

Nanking, China, Sept. 23.—Gen. Chang Feh-kwei yesterday was dismissed from command of the famous Fourth Division, known as "The Ironsides," stationed at Ichang, in western Hupeh Province, "for attempting to utilize his military command to the detriment of public peace and order." This action was taken in a mandate issued by the state council of the Nationalist Government, which stated further that the division was "swallowing Nationalist Government orders and meantime accepting the authority of the brigade commanders of the division." While no further explanation of the dismissal of the general was forthcoming, it was understood the central Government had been informed he was showing a tendency toward independent activities.

Alcohol From Sugar Runs Filipino Car

Manila, Sept. 23.—For countries that can produce alcohol cheaper than gasoline William B. Irey of this city thinks he has solved the automobile fuel bill. He has invented an intake manifold which he claims enables any car to run on alcohol about as well as on gasoline. He says gasoline gives two more miles a gallon but that alcohol can be sold in these islands for about half the price of gas.

The Philippines now produce about 5,000,000 gallons of alcohol annually as a by-product of the sugar industry.

ANNIHILATING TIME AND DISTANCE

MAIL TO THE ARCTIC CIRCLE IN
four days! This is the significance of the Post Office Department's announcement that, commencing in November, merchandise and mail will be carried from Edmonton to Aklavik, at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, a distance of 2,000 miles, by aeroplane. Hitherto winter mail delivery between the two points by the old dog sled methods required about ten weeks for a single trip.

Developments in aerial navigation already have given us some idea of the importance of the aeroplane as a factor in opening up this country. For some time Whithorse has been the base of a flying service connecting that centre with other Yukon points. The trip to Mayo, for example, is made in less than three hours, whereas at one time it took seventeen days. Thus, in the not distant future, most of the remote outposts of Canada will lose entirely the isolation which put them in almost another world.

In the annihilation of space and time, the radio is a joint partner with the aeroplane. The distant homestead is no longer lonely in the sense that it used to be. Scarcely a farm in any part of the country is without its receiving set. When the labors of the day are ended, the farmer and his family may tune in on the life of a big city. It may not be long before families may unite on the air, no matter how widely separated they may be. For the wonders of the radio, as we know them now, will be eclipsed by new wonders from time to time.

On the aeroplane still greater dependence for contact with remote areas will be placed as the years pass. In many parts of the country, hitherto inaccessible except by devious and dangerous routes, now may be reached in comfort and speed. Vast areas into which man has scarcely penetrated soon will be as an open book. They have been photographed from the air. Prospectors who used to trudge for many weary days now travel by air to the numerous mineralized zones in distant sections of the Dominion.

ONTARIO ELECTION UNPOPULAR

IF A GOOD DEAL OF THE EDITORIAL
comment now appearing in Ontario newspapers reflects the attitude of the general public towards Premier Ferguson's decision to hold a general election after less than three years in office, there is much dissatisfaction throughout the province over what is being considered a needless waste of public money. It is pointed out that there was no condition in the Legislature, such as a deadlock or anything of that sort, that called for the election of a new House. Nor was there any defection on the part of the supporters of the Government which in any way could be considered a challenge to Mr. Ferguson to submit his policies to the electors.

The Toronto Star emphasizes what is apparent to most. Premier Ferguson has "sprung" his election at this time because he thinks he can do better now than he might be able to do six months or a year hence. It also is being said that Mr. Ferguson believes he will be assisting Mr. Bennett if he can score a victory in Ontario before the next Federal general election takes place. The Woodstock Sentinel-Review observes, however, that the last provincial contest cost the province $775,000, not including the expenses candidates and organizations incurred. This, the paper notes, should cover four years, which would be an average of $144,000 a year. "The province has, therefore, spent $144,000 for next year," we read further, "and the Ferguson Government throws that away by now holding an election not called for by any need of the province, but only by a supposed need of the party led by Mr. Ferguson."

The B.N.A. Act sets four years as the life of a Legislature in Ontario and Quebec, and, as The Toronto Star says, as a rule, with a couple of exceptions where conditions were out of the ordinary, the life of Ontario Legislatures has approximated four years. "In the present instance only," it concludes, "has the constitutional provision been ignored without anything like a compelling cause or plausible excuse."

Mr. Ferguson had a majority of forty-one over the combined opposition in the last Legislature—a fairly formidable margin to wear down—but it is hardly to be supposed that even he expects anything like that advantage when he meets the House after this election. On the contrary, an opinion exists in some quarters that his party will have all its work cut out to command a majority at all.

THE PESSIMISTS' SLOGAN

THE GREAT RALLYING CRY OF THE
pessimists and the die-hards has always been the flat statement, "You cannot change human nature." Usually nobody bothers to take issue with it. But Oliver Baldwin, the Socialist son of Britain's former Conservative Prime Minister, got vexed when a heckler flung the remark at him in the course of a political speech. He answered it with this question: "Does man still support bear baiting, cock fighting, the pillory, public executions, drawing and quartering, and press gangs?"

What he meant was obvious. The things he mentioned were established institutions only a few years ago. Nobody thought of objecting to them. It was human nature to accept them.

Not one of them survives to-day. Why? Because human nature has changed to such an extent that these things which formerly pleased it now revolt at it.

The matter is rather important. You will never hear any reform proposed, you will never hear any change for the better in human society discussed, without hearing some croaker remark gloomily, "It sounds very pretty, but, after all, you cannot change human nature."

If that verdict were true, of course, it would be necessary for us to give up all of our hopes of advancement. It would be necessary for us to make up our minds to it that we should always have in the world just as much meanness, dishonesty, selfishness, greed, jealousy, hatred and cruelty as we have at present. Having done that, we might as well go and blow our brains out; for no man is very happy unless he has some sort of faith that somehow, some day, things are going to be a little bit easier for his children's children.

But we do not need to do those things. The whole story of the rise of civilization, beginning with the mud-and-stone huts of the earliest savages, and continuing down to the present day, is nothing more or less than the story of the way human nature has changed.

Human nature, in the beginning, was not very different from the nature of the wild beasts. The relics of the Swiss lake dwellers give no hint that the skin-clad men and women of that prehistoric day were to be the ultimate forefathers of such men as Shakespeare, Bacon, Beethoven and Michelangelo. Between the caveman and, say, the modern scientist, there seems little connection.

But the connection, the ancestry, is there, nevertheless. Human nature, in other words, has changed. It began in darkness, and now it is streaked with light; some day, we may hope, it will be bright enough for men to see their way without stumbling at all.

A SCHEME THAT WORKED

ALTHOUGH THERE IS NO PROSPECT
yet of resumption of immigration to Canada on the pre-war scale, this year's results so far are by no means unsatisfactory. Including the month of June, nearly 100,000 new settlers already had arrived in the Dominion, and of these nearly ninety per cent were British. For the same period of last year, without the restriction now in force on Continental immigrants, the number of newcomers was 71,000.

Discussing this year's movement so far, Dr. W. J. Black, Director of Colonization for the Canadian National Railways, says the $50 rate across the Atlantic has produced results which have far exceeded expectations. There was an increase of nearly forty per cent in the movement of British families and independent settlers to Canada during the first five months of the present year, as compared with the corresponding period of 1928, and there has been "a remarkable change for the better in the calibre of the immigrant." Indeed, Dr. Black remarks, the fifty-dollar rate has attracted to Canada people "with just that amount of independence and imagination that it needed to make a success of settling this country."

What has taken place this year shows that the best method of attracting settlers of the right kind to this country is not the offer of a free trip, and a coddling policy when they arrive here, but steamship and rail fares which will enable the average wage earner to come to Canada with the feeling that he is accepting no favors. The most successful settler, of course, is he who pays his own way, gets his own job, and quickly becomes Canadianized. A few of his sort are worth hundreds of those who think the country is all wrong.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

A QUEER BIRD
The Toronto Mail and Empire

We have been always rather curious to know what kind of man is employed to clip newspaper editorials and condense and combine them for The Literary Digest. So we were interested to hear that one of them is about to enter the New Brunswick woods wearing only a pair of spectacles and live on the wild inhabitants of the terrain.

THE NEXT STEP
The Manitoba Free Press

An international naval compromise is the next logical advance in the tranquillization of world affairs. A great step has just been made with the reparations settlement, which puts the European war debts and compensations on an even keel, and deepens the general sentiment for peace. It was precisely this general sentiment for peace that smoothed out finally the difficulties about details that delayed the negotiations at The Hague, and the same sentiment should be in operation when the practical proposals are laid before the conference for naval limitation. To accept the Kellogg Pact, to compromise on reparations, to agree on the evacuation of the occupied Rhineland areas, and then to break down on the technical details of a plan for naval limitation, would be a reproach to international intelligence which is not likely to be made. Mr. MacDonald's satisfaction with the progress of the private conversations between himself and Mr. Dawes is an excellent augury that the question is being brought down to a practical shape which will be accepted by both nations when a formal conference is held.

VICTORIA THROUGH AMERICAN EYES
From Canada (London, England)

A widely-read American journalist, Mr. Arthur Brisbane, has been visiting the capital of British Columbia, and what he has seen of it and its citizens has moved him to almost lyrical enthusiasm. Victoria itself he alternatively describes as "British as Basingstoke," and as beautiful in scenery, luxuriant growth and flowers, and peaceful quiet as any place on earth. Those of his fellow-countrymen who want to see how Britishers live and do business Mr. Brisbane advises to go to Victoria. Here, he says, "they live happily every day." For "they have time to live," and "their faces are pink—no deep lines running from the eyes towards the chin, such as you see on United States faces." Indeed, "here men on $4,000 a year look prosperous and contented. Instead of looking dyspeptic and worried on $100,000 a year, as we do in the States." In fine, says Mr. Brisbane, every American, sooner or later, ought to come to Victoria, and then travel along Puget Sound to Vancouver. "If only to know this magnificent body of water," which, he says, "is as smooth as the water in a bathtub, with faint ripples that suggest a pleasing pattern for a lady's dress material," while there "the air that blows down from the cold northern waters makes you feel thirty years younger and two feet taller." Surely it scarcely requires an added reference by Mr. Brisbane to "American hot-dog stands erected near the beer parlors" upon whose attractiveness he further expatiates—to insure an instant invasion of American visitors to Victoria!

A THOUGHT

When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest.—St. Luke xiv 24.
Men, in whatever anxiety they may be, if they are men, sometimes indulge in relaxation.—Cicero.

Loose Ends

Why we need a real poet out here to sing the romance of our coast—the noble sport of student carving still goes on in warlike Europe—where they even try to ban "all quiet" because it is too peaceable.

By H. B. W.

OF THE NEW-England coast the other day they held their annual races for the white-winged sailing ships which still sail out of Boston and Gloucester in pursuit of cod, mackerel, herring and halibut. As usual, the races revived in many newspapers memories of those ancient fisheries, of the "Wreck of the Hesperus" and other stirring times out past the reef of Norman's Woe. These storied waters, indeed, are known by a reputation the world over as the scene of rugged daring. A substantial literature has been built up around them by such men as Longfellow, and England's Kipling, whose "Captains Courageous" is one of the epics of the Atlantic seaboard.

THIS SHOWS you that romance requires press-agenting, like anything else. Out on this coast our fishermen in their little gasoline boats, our skippers of coastwise craft of all kinds, lead a life of adventure quite equal to that of the men who go down to the sea in ships out of Gloucester. Not that the Atlantic any finer feat of seamanship to offer than the everyday work of the captains of passenger steamers who ply up and down this coast through storm and fog, often judging their bearings only by the echo of their whistles on the shore.

BUT OUR coast has not found its poet yet. We need a Longfellow or a Kipling, and when we find him we shall suddenly realize that we have a realm of romance at our door. But without someone to tell us and the world about these things in sufficiently graphic style we shall pay little attention to them. Who would ever have heard about the charge of the Light Brigade if it hadn't been for Tennyson? There are thousands of just as interesting churchyards, but Stoke Pogies is known everywhere because Gray happened to meditate in it. There were just as good wrecks as that of the Hesperus but no Longfellow, just as good deserted villages as Auburn but no Goldsmith, just as good Danes as Hamlet, but no Shakespeare. Just as good food as roast pork but no Lamb. The Publicity Bureau might well ponder the possibilities of a first-rate poet.

WHEN YOU are inclined to grow impatient and wonder why the statesmen of Europe can't settle their troubles as we do over here and be done with them, some little, obscure, unimportant thing happens to show you how hard it must be to keep the peace in Europe at all. The other day slim and fragile Fraulein Lisa Goldschmidt, recently crowned by the Galveston beauty contest as the most beautiful girl in the world, paid a friendly visit to Roumania as the guest of a Roumanian casino. At Bucharest a mob of passionately-patriotic Roumanians, because she was a Jewess and too thin for Roumanian taste in beauty, proceeded to mob her, and she just escaped with her life into a cathedral.

IN THE last issue of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, Francis Hunt, noted war correspondent, tells how German students carry on a systematic practice of duelling, often carrying up one another's faces, and recently the whole question of duelling was debated in the Thuringian Diet after a duel which killed one of the students of the University of Jena. When the Social Democrats proposed a resolution demanding that the state government wipe out this "disgrace to German student life," the bourgeois deputies insisted upon classifying duelling as an "uplifting institution." The anti-duelling resolution was defeated by a vote of 28 to 27 and carving of students' faces will go on at the University of Jena unhindered.

SMALL wisps of news these, but they give you an idea just what a job it is to pacify Europe's warlike children.

ON THE other hand, if any proof were needed to show that books like "All Quiet on the Western Front" are proving fruitful propaganda against war, the Austrian Army has supplied it. The command of the Fifth Brigade of the Austrian Army has placed Mr. Remarque's book on the index so far as the Austrian soldier is concerned. The Minister for Territorial Defence, probably having read the book himself, went further and decided that no Austrian soldier in any brigade should be permitted to have it. He said it was likely "to impair the spirit of resistance in the raw recruit" and breed "skepticism in the matter of soldierly virtues." I should think, after reading

Mr. Remarque's remarkable book that it very likely would do all that.

EVEN IF the Minister for Territorial Defence succeeds in banning "All Quiet," however, even if his ban falls to read it, there are other war books, and before he has finished the unhappy minister will have to refuse to admit any recruit to the Austrian Army if he can read at all. In the end, with the channels of propaganda that exist in our day, it will be necessary to enlist only recruits who are blind, deaf and dumb. The Austrian Ministry for Territorial Defence will find, like every government in history, that you can drill men and make armies march, but ideas care nothing for the rules of discipline. Only indifference, not opposition, will stop a good idea. The fact that Mr. Remarque's good idea is making real headway is proved by these futile attempts to hold it back by military order.

WHILE MOST of us, living where the talkies are close at hand, spend much of our time criticising them, there is one audience in the world glad to applaud the poorest film ever made. To this audience a few days ago went a shipload of comedies, tragedies and newswreels, 778,000 feet altogether. This ship is bound for Cullion, the Philippine leper island. Every year such a shipment is sent there, and when it arrives the unfortunate inhabitants are reported to cheer and send off fireworks. Scarcely less pathetic was the scene a few days ago in a New York theatre when 100 people, some totally blind and some deaf, were treated to a recording of Ronald Coleman's famous "Building Drums." The deaf "listeners" through special earphones and a lecturer, explained the action to the blind. The deaf were more excited but the blind laughed most at the comedy parts. All enjoyed themselves and then went home to silence or darkness. Whether you like it or not, the film is becoming our universal language.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

The Victoria Daily Times, September 23, 1904

(Associated Press)
Winnipeg, Sept. 23.—Lord and Lady Minto arrived here from Regina at 6 o'clock this morning and rested until 10, when civic ceremonies opened.

Weather Forecast—Victoria and Vicinity—Light to moderate northerly winds, continued fine to-day and Saturday.

A lacrosse match will be played Thursday afternoon next between Victoria and Vancouver.

About twenty-five tourists, composing a Raymond Whitcomb party, are in the city.

A special report to The Times from Nanaimo to-day reports that H.M.S. Shearwater arrived at Comox at 7 o'clock last evening, having finished her patrolling duties in Bering Sea for the present season.

E. E. Blackwood left this morning for a trip up the Island on the E. and N. Railway.

TOURISTS, PARKS AND BUCKET SHOPS

To the Editor:—Having been over in Vancouver for a few days, there are several things which struck me which might be helpful to those who want to see Victoria go ahead.

Vancouver is embarking on a civic centre scheme at a cost of $1,250,000. Its citizens consider it essential if they want to keep pace with the growth of the tourist business, which in British Columbia this year, from January 1 to August 31, brought in over 1,100,000 people, who spent in the Province $35,000,000. The operation of the parks board and the results are things to be envied by all progressive Victorians. The chief of police is making a most successful drive to clean the bucket shop brokers out of Vancouver. He is largely aided by the public, who are writing him letters and giving details of illegal operations.

PROGRESS.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

To the Editor:—In all my experience I have never read anything so revolting as the article in last night's Times telling of the case of a man (Nick Popovich) torturing a horse by tying his tongue to another horse's tail and tearing it out, causing the poor dumb animal terrible pain. This is the twentieth century and Canada is supposed to be a civilized country, yet these Russians come here and do as they like, make their own laws, and get away with it. For this terrible atrocity this callous brute was only fined $50, the magistrate having to admit he had no power to do otherwise. I hope someone will see that this fiend in human form gets his deserts. Any punishment I can think of would be much too good for him—except perhaps a tongue for a tongue.

RE MIRACLES AND POWER

To the Editor:—Your second editorial in Tuesday's issue, September 17, speaks well for the truth of the divinely-inspired word of the living God. Truly it says: "There is no power but of God, and the powers that are ordained of God" (Romans xiii), and not only does the holy scripture, the wonderful word of life, speak encouragingly to those who need help from above, (which was so readily vouchsafed to the mayors of the place you mentioned), but we know, too, that "God is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him" (Hebrews xii), and so we travel on day by day proving Him to be as faithful as His word, which is "forever settled in Heaven" (Psalm cii 29).

Progressives Of Ontario Oppose Sale of Liquor

Toronto, Sept. 23.—The Progressive Party of Ontario has gone on record, in an election manifesto issued under the signature of its leader, J. G. Lethbridge, in favor of the prohibition of manufacture, importation and sale of strong drink for beverage purposes.

The manifesto further declares the Progressive Party is prepared to present a bill in the Legislature to the effect that no brewery or distillery shall manufacture or sell alcoholic liquor in the province and to submit the bill to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London to test the authority of the Privy Council over manufacture.

The statement of policy is at once an indictment of the present Liquor Act and a pledge, should the Progressives be returned to power, that a plebiscite on the liquor question would be submitted within a year.

The manifesto charges the Conservative Government with bringing on an unnecessary general election, adding a further burden to the ratepayers of the province. The Progressives take a

Officials at the field said Redman died from a fracture of the skull suffered in a fall from his plane. They said he fell from the machine before it struck the ground and was demolished.

DEMONSTRATION IN BERLIN LEADS TO 100 ARRESTS

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Collisions between extreme Nationalists and Communists occurred last evening during a procession organized by the former in favor of a plebiscite on the bill "against the enslavement of the German nation." This bill would repudiate in their entirety all post-war treaties and agreements, including the Young Plan for reparations, and stipulates that any German minister or plenipotentiary signing an agreement imposing fees or other burdens on Germany would be liable for trial for high treason.

The Nationalists were hooted along the entire route of the procession. Shots were fired, although without any injury to anyone. An automobile in which a deputy of the Reichstag, a leader of the Nationalists, was sitting, was held up by a mob of people and a free-for-all fight followed on the spot, where firing went on again.

Altogether 100 persons were arrested in various fights about the city. Most of those arrested were Communists.

Presented With Bouquet on Arrival By China Club of Seattle

Madame C. C. Wu, wife of the new Chinese Minister to the United States, arrived here from Hongkong yesterday on board the liner President Pierce. She was accompanied by her son and three daughters and is proceeding direct to Washington, D.C.

On arrival at the United States capital she expects to meet her husband, Dr. C. C. Wu, who is due this week from Geneva, where he has been attending the League of Nations conference as a representative of the Nationalist Government.

Madame Wu, dressed in Occidental costume of the very latest fashion and speaking excellent English, was very popular with the passengers during the trans-Pacific voyage.

Two of her daughters have previously attended college on this continent.

CHARMING INCIDENT

An interesting incident took place on board the President Pierce when Madame Wu as the central figure when she was presented with a large bouquet of flowers from the China Club of Seattle.

This is the first occasion that the Chinese minister's wife has visited Victoria and she spoke with evident delight of the wonderful gardens she witnessed during a drive through the suburbs.

The party was taken on an automobile drive around the city and environs by Henry M. Cady, publicity representative for the American Mail Line.

Paris Tragedies Follow Death Of Artist Model

Marcelle Was Belle of Latin Quarter; Two Lives Go Out With Hers

Paris, Sept. 23.—Marcelle was only a little model of Montparnasse, but as she went the way of so many girls with a pretty smile who cast their lot with the more or less artistic quarter over on the Left Bank she innocently brought tragedy into the lives of others. To her is now traced the death of Hugo von Hoffmannstahl, celebrated Austrian dramatist and poet, who collapsed when he learned that his son had committed suicide.

The story has been revealed by Georges Omer, in the "Paris Mid." Young Hugo von Hoffmannstahl, who shot himself in the head at his father's house in Vienna, was only twenty-six, the pride of his brilliant father, and a handsome young man ambitious to follow his father's career. He came to Paris to continue his studies. His suicide was attributed to his despair of winning success as a writer, but M. Omer points out that while in Paris the young man met Marcelle and fell madly in love with her.

Marcelle Senthil, a clerk in a municipal office in Lyons four years ago, came to Paris to seek her fortune and drifted into the bars and cabarets of

WHAT THE TWO-YEAR-OLD CAN DO (By Request)

The activities of the average two to three-year-old child seem miraculous to the parents who are unfamiliar with children. They fill every listening ear with tales of their child's achievements and are themselves constantly surprised at the marked evidence of intelligence. The baby develops so quickly at this age that we can understand how incredible his abilities must seem.

All children are not alike, we must remember, but a cross-section of the activities of the average two-year-old will seem more than a bit familiar to the parents of children of this age. If your own child is unable to accomplish all that average two-year-olds are capable of, it may be from lack of opportunity. Some parents wait on a child long past the age when he would dress and feed himself, it is no fault of his that he lacks the practice which will develop his abilities along these lines.

The two to three-year-old child in the nursery school is given free rein and he develops accordingly. He can walk up and down stairs (holding on with one hand) and is able to carry small objects in the free hand. In fact he'll spend a good share of his time solemnly walking up and down clutched the rail with one hand and a ball or a teapot or some toy in the other.

He can feed himself at table, place his bib but not tie it, carry his own cup of milk without spilling and scatter up his crumbs and carry them to the waste basket when the meal is finished. His activities range all the way from block building without much

FRENCHMEN ARGUE IDEALS OF MODERN WIFE

Her Virtues and Faults Stir Lively Controversy in L'Oeuvre

Paris, Sept. 23.—Paris has been paying a good deal of attention lately to an amusing controversy that has flourished in the columns of the newspaper L'Oeuvre—a controversy about the virtues and faults of the modern woman. And it has remained for a bus conductor to cap the climax by writing in to suggest that all homes could be happy if husbands and wives would only model their domestic behavior after the professional pattern practiced by the men who run the buses.

The controversy started when a French government official in Indo-China wrote the newspaper protesting that only in the Orient could one find the ancient ideal of womanhood. "In a native woman," he wrote, "I am sure to find the submission and deference which no longer exist in the modern woman, especially the type that has evolved since the war. The lack of intelligence of our own women, and their absurd struggle for what they fancy as their freedom, only serve to harass men and to make them (the women) undesirable mates."

Then a woman university professor wrote in to uphold the cause of the modern woman.

NOT ALWAYS SUPERIOR

"An intelligent woman," she declared, "would be happy to obey a man who would show himself her superior. Is it her fault that often physical superiority—dear men—superiority in other respects? I suspect that our Indo-Chinese representative wants at the same time the submission of the native and the intelligence of the white woman."

Then came the bus conductor with this contribution:

"I do my job on the back end of the bus and my colleague does his job on the front end, and because we each stick to our jobs we arrive on time. The same should apply in the home between man and wife. Let each stick to their jobs and they will get along. Feminists might say that my wife is my servant because she cooks and mends for me, but far from complaining she glories in this work while I am proud to do my more strenuous work on the back end of a bus. We therefore help each other. My wife realizes that she has a noble task before her, and I realize that I must help her by cooking tickets and keeping the old bus running."

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, was to play his first film role, a singing blacksmith, in a new talking picture, is to be paid between $400,000 and $500,000 for his five months' work in connection with the production.

This statement was made by Mr. Frank Borzage when he reached Southampton in the Cunarder Aquitania from New York. Mr. Borzage is a director of the Fox Film Company, which is to produce the film.

He said: "We are going to make a true picture of Irish life, and we shall take care to keep clear of the usual sentimentality and clay-pipe atmosphere. The cost will be approximately $1,000,000. Some of the Irish scenes are to be taken in the countryside around Dublin and others in Killarney, and will be followed by interiors representing Milan. These will be filmed in the studios at Hollywood."

Mr. McCormack will sail from Southampton for Hollywood early in October to complete his work. He will sing eight songs, some of which will be popular numbers.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

INDICATIONS are that major league officials, both owners and managers, are worried over the future of baseball. Bill McKechnie, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who will sever his connections with baseball if he is elected tax collector of the borough of Wilkesburg, Pa., has something of importance to say on the subject.

"For the first time since I became associated with professional baseball," McKechnie says, "I hear the players discussing what will become of them in future years. Those empty seats in the big league parks loom up as menacing something, and, like the players, I started to wonder what would become of me in the next few years. Then I decided to enter the political ring in my home town and prepare myself for the future."

"Something will have to be done to win back the fans. Why not venture to say that there will be a minor league outside of Class A in the next three years that is not governed by a major league club? About the only club in the National League which have not shown a marked decline at the gate are Chicago and Philadelphia. St. Louis, New York, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati are decidedly worried about the slump in attendance. The adult public, which pays the freight, is being weaned away by some undiscovered reason. It is not only noticeable in the major leagues, but the minor leagues as well. Out of the St. Louis Cardinals' seven minor league clubs; only one, Rochester, of the International League, is making money."

Baseball hasn't been very kind to McKechnie. He won a pennant and world championship at Pittsburgh and lost his job. He won a pennant with the St. Louis Cardinals and was shipped back to the minor leagues. Only to get his berth back a few months later. If McKechnie is elected to his new job he will receive a salary of $15,000, more than he ever made in one season in baseball.

They're carving a special niche in the fistic hall of fame for "Kee" Chocolate, grinning negro boy from Cuba, the "fighting" bit of dusky ring machinery since the days of George Dixon and Joe Gans. A year ago the ebony enigma, still a shade under twenty years old, though he claims officially to have reached his majority, drifted into New York from Havana, unaccompanied by any of the trumpeting of the ballyhoo horns that usually greets leather pushing invaders. The "Kee" was a real find. He was to fight as often as anyone would use him for $50 per fight.

To-day the situation is somewhat different. The picturesque chocolate drop, swift, keen, and a deadly accurate puncher, has climbed the popularity ladder rapidly. His last pay cheque was slightly over $50,000 for disposing of Al Singer, the second Benny Leonard, in the eyes of Jewish fans.

The "Kee" has a ring personality to couple with his fighting ability that has made him an amazingly popular figure. His blood glitters under the ring flood lights like a slender, polished staff of black marble. His wide smile, changing quickly to a grimace when the going gets rough, bares, glistening white teeth and he rolls the whites of his eyeballs in appreciation when in rare moments an opponent reaches him with a solid punch.

Chocolate, whose real name is Eligio Sardinas, probably will never grow out of the featherweight class with its limit of 128 pounds. He has matured rapidly, though, and enough training may build up enough poundage to lift him into the lightweight division.

New light is turned upon the old subject of Jack Dempsey's knockdown of Gene Tunney in that seventh round in Chicago in a book by Ed Van Every of The New York World, in which Van Every tells the story of William Muldoon.

Muldoon, the grand old man of pugilism, became interested in Tunney on the night of the first of his five meetings with the late Harry Greb. Tunney had taken a terrific beating and had displayed marvelous stamina and courage. There was a similarity in the early manhood of the young boxer and the venerable head of the New York Boxing Commission. Each had enlisted at the call of war through a high sense of duty and each had ideals on the importance of clean living.

Muldoon and Tunney became friends. After the Philadelphia battle, Muldoon said, "It is a fine thing for the welfare of boxing that we have a man of the type of Gene Tunney as the outstanding champion."

"Therefore," writes Van Every, "it surely did me) that it is the firm belief of Muldoon that Gene Tunney was knocked out by Jack Dempsey in the Chicago contest, and that Dempsey actually regained his title in that battle."

"Much comment was aroused in the sports pages throughout the country over an expression of the opinion on the part of Muldoon that Jack Dempsey should have been declared the champion on the retirement of Tunney. And this is what influenced Mr. Muldoon's opinion. At that time, I was requested not to make public what he expressed to me on this point. But I feel mention of the matter is in order now."

It is said that Jack Sharkey has gone in for art. It must be true, for he refused to pose for a picture with Victor Campolo the other day.

Young Stripling has made close to $100,000 boxing since his bout with Sharkey at Miami, Fla. said.

Sharkey is said to hate Loughran bitterly. He'll probably forget all about

Many Goals Scored Direct From Corner Kicks in League Games Saturday; Derby County, Leaders of English First Division, Suffers First Defeat of Season; Arsenal Gains First Points Against Sunderland at Roker Park Since 1924; Defeat of Glasgow Rangers for First Time Surprises.

London, Sept. 23.—Saturday's soccer football matches in England produced plenty of incidents. In the First Division English League, Derby County, who have been leading the division, were beaten for the first time this season.

Bradford got three goals for Birmingham against Newcastle United and enabled them to win, 5-1. Chelsea suffered their second defeat at the hands of Southampton at the Dell and it was largely due to Drewry's shooting.

Jack Hendricks Resigns Position As Reds' Manager

Cincinnati, Sept. 23.—Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati National baseball team, yesterday handed in his resignation, effective at the end of the season, October 6. Hendricks said he would represent the Reds in the annual draft meeting in Chicago and his work would be finished. He said he had no future plans and did not know who would pilot the team next year.

Walter Gravlin and Bob Morrison Win Over S. Sutherland and W. Waldie

Adding seventeen points to their lead of five, golfers from the Uplands Golf Club gained possession of the Sutherland-Forster goblet yesterday in the second half of the annual match against the Point Grey Golf Club of Vancouver, played here. The score yesterday was Uplands 38½, Point Grey 21½. Several fine matches were witnessed. This is the local club's biggest inter-club match of the season. Walter Gravlin, the Uplands pro, and Bob Morrison, first string amateur, managed to grab off two of the three points in their match against D. Sutherland and W. Waldie. Sutherland and Waldie, two other of Uplands' strong players, gained one-and-a-half points in their game with F. M. Bone and R. Watson.

Four-ball matches only were played, owing to the large field. The scores with the Point Grey players first mentioned, follow:

English Girl Tennis Star In Twin Win

Betty Nuthall Wins Singles and Doubles Matches in California Tourney

Starting Upsets Feature Play; Intercollegiate Champions Defeated

Los Angeles, Sept. 23.—Betty Nuthall, eighteen-year-old British Wimbledon Cup player, furnished the major thrill of the third day's matches at the Pacific Southwest tennis championships tournament here yesterday, downing a stubborn Los Angeles youngster, Helen Marlowe, 6-2, 7-5, to advance into the fourth round of women's singles play.

Miss Nuthall later joined Johnny Van Ryn, former Princeton athlete, to win over Edith Cross, San Francisco, youthful member of the United States Wightman team, and Frank Shields, East Orange, N.J., last year's junior title holder, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Nuthall was pressed strongly in the second set of her match with Miss Marlowe. The American girl apparently was suffering from stage fright in the first set and missed shots she later made very effectively.

The English star, except during periods of unusual brilliancy on the part of Miss Marlowe, was superior throughout.

Stardust upsets featured the tournament play. The unknown, Jerry Barton, Los Angeles, and E. R. Lewis, University of California at Los Angeles, trounced Ben Gorchakoff and Art Kussman, Occidental College doubles team, and intercollegiate champions, in three hard sets, 6-11, 11-11, 6-3. Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., national junior champion, later defeated Sidney Wood of Pasadena, California, and New York, in a three set match, 7-6, 7-6, 6-2. Josephine Cruikshank, Santa Ana, California, defeated Mary Greff, Kansas City, 6-4, 6-4. Gledhill was expected to approach much nearer the finals, while Gorchakoff and Kussman in some instances had been conceded the doubles title after their exhibition defeat of Fritz Mercer, Harrisburg, Pa., and Oulbert Hall, Trenton, N.J., national city court champions, yesterday.

GOOD TEAM TO DEFEND BIG SHIELD

Bisley Men to Shoot For Victoria Against Mainland For Butchart Trophy

Meet to Be Held at Richmond Ranges on Sept. 29; Blair Opposing Captain

A team, including Victoria's first-ranking Bisley shots, was selected to defend the Butchart Shield against the pick of Vancouver's marksmen at the Richmond Ranges, Vancouver, next Sunday, and is expected to retain the trophy the Capital has held every year but one since it was donated.

The local squad will consist of Master Gunner H. Collins, Sergeant S. Watson, Sergeant J. H. Regan, Lieutenant D. Fyvie, Major P. Richardson, A.Q.M.S., Evans, Capt. W. E. Tapley and Sergeant A. E. Ashe. Extra men included are Gunner S. S. Brown and Sergeant McKay.

With this array of sharpshooters the Victoria club is highly optimistic over the outcome of the match, and hopes to see the coveted trophy again resting in the Capital.

However, they will be up against stiff opposition, as it is understood that Lieutenant-Colonel E. M. Blair, winner of the King's Prize and Grand Aggregate at Bisley, will captain a strong mainland contingent for the match.

A meeting of the Oak Bay Wanderers senior and intermediate rugby teams will be held in the St. Michael's School gymnasium on the corner of Windsor and Roslyn Roads on Wednesday night at 7:45.

FOXY PHANN Married men shouldn't carry cigars in the vest pocket - it's too hard explaining the busted ones

The championship will be decided on seventy-two holes of medal play, thirty-six holes to-morrow and another thirty-six on Wednesday. The golfer with the lowest score at the finish will be declared open champion of the Province.

Dave Black, prominent Vancouver pro, has arrived in the city to defend the title he won last year at the Shaughnessy Heights Club, Vancouver. Other Vancouver pros entered are Jimmy Hulse, Nat Cornfoot and Don and Dunc Sutherland. Of the Vancouver amateurs Monte Hill, Jack Fraser and Cecil Coville are the most prominent. Hill at present holds the Vancouver city championship. Freddy Wood, who made such a splendid showing in the Canadian amateur at Jasper, has failed to file his entry, but he may come over at the last minute.

The field of amateurs has been reduced a great deal owing to the fact that many of the younger stars have found it impossible to get away from their work for two days.

Bob Morrison is the big hope of the local amateurs to wrest the title away from the pros. Morrison played spectacular golf in the recent city championship.

In addition to the open championship, British Columbia handicap event will be staged. The handicap limit is set at fourteen. This will be the outside margin of amateurs and the winner will be British Columbia handicap golf champion.

The draw and starting times for the morning round to-morrow follow: 9:00—Jack Fraser and Walter Grasslin. 9:05—T. L. Swan and R. B. Francis. 9:10—Harry Duker and J. Scientist Party Had Thrilling Adventures In Jungles of Borneo

Crane Party Passed Through Victoria Saturday Aboard Empress of Asia After Collecting Specimens in Dutch East Indies for Chicago Field Museum; Exciting Adventures Recounted.

After a thirty-thousand-mile voyage in an old sailing ship to the glamorous equator, and many months packed with the thrills of animal trapping in the snake-infested jungles of Borneo and New Guinea, Cornelius Crane, son of R. T. Crane, Chicago, multi-millionaire, and four other members of a scientific expedition, passed through Victoria on Saturday afternoon aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia from the Orient.

FOR CHICAGO MUSEUM

Since last November these five explorers have been collecting zoological specimens in these out of the way places for the Chicago Field Museum. Mr. Crane senior journeyed to the Pacific Coast from Chicago in his private car and crossed to Victoria from Seattle on Saturday to meet his sportsman son aboard the Asia here. He went on to Vancouver with him.

Born and bred in the tropics, Crane, Cornellius, slim, youthful organizer and leader of the expedition, discussed his adventures in a matter-of-fact way which belied the perils which so recently faced the little band of scientists and sportsmen.

His companions, M. N. Fainstuck, Charles R. Peck, Sidney R. Shurtliff and Dr. W. L. Moore of Harvard Medical School, who was medical officer and anthropologist of the journey, spoke praise for the initiative and organizing ability of the youthful Crane, who was not a scientist; they said, but a keen sportsman. He was responsible for the entire expedition.

MANY PERILS

Success attended the efforts of the party in their 30,000-mile voyage over unknown and little known areas of the world. Fraught with perils from unfriendly natives, poisonous reptiles, fever-ridden swamps, ferocious beasts, their forays inland from the seaboards were productive of much in the way of scientific discovery. They secured hundreds of species of new animals, all of them interesting, and many of them new.

There is a "Treasure Island" touch to the story of their preparations for their romantic trip. Scouring up to a powered craft which they easily might have secured, they set out from Boston November 16 last year in a 350-ton sailing ship, the brigantine, Illia, sailing through the Panama Canal, through the Galapagos Islands, 800 miles southwest of the Panama and then on to Hayti, Borneo, Mar and then to the Philippines, New Guinea, Solomon Islands, New Guinea and the Dutch East Indies. Altogether they crossed the equator six times.

HUGE SEA SHIPPED DURING TYPHOON OFF JAPAN STOVE IN PART OF ASIA'S BRIDGE

Comber Reaching to Foremost Crosstree Crashed With Terrific Force Over Navigating Deck Causing Extensive Damage; President Pierce Was Hove-to in Same Storm.

In a gale that rapidly developed the proportions of a typhoon off the Japan coast, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia shipped a huge sea that wrecked a section of her bridge.

As the gigantic comber swept aboard the big ship quivered from stem to stern, but she kept her seaway and fought through the storm without sustaining any further damage, although her decks were continually swept by the furious seas.

The gale raged off the Japan coast for two whole days after the Empress of Asia had cleared from Yokohama, and it was described by officers as the worst experienced since last winter.

Everybody aboard the ship was under cover when the big sea reared itself over the prow to the height of the cross-tree on the foremast. Had there been anyone on the foredeck at the time they would in all probability have been swept overboard or suffered serious injury.

SHIP HOVE-TO

While in the thick of the storm the Empress liner was virtually hove-to. Although she averaged about nineteen knots for the balance of the voyage the Asia was ten hours behind schedule when she made this port on Saturday, her experience in the earlier storm precluding any possibility of

LEFT TOGETHER

The Empress of Asia sailed from Yokohama at 4 p.m. on September 12, and at 4:30 p.m. the same day she was followed out by the Japanese harbor by the President Pierce of the American Mail Line.

It looked bad for both ships as they headed into the open Pacific, east-bound.

Capt. A. J. Halley, of the Empress of Asia, took the southern course, while Capt. Henry Nelson, of the President Pierce, chose a more northerly route. The storm was general over a wide area, and both ships got into its grip, and it was described by officers as the worst of the deal.

The first day out the President

Pierce made 253 miles, but it was estimated by her officers that the lost fifty miles in hove-toing in the face of the heavy storm. Once clear, the Pierce excelled herself and reeled off nineteen knots.

The American Mail liner reached here yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, a full day ahead of her scheduled steaming time.

A'S COCKY AS SERIES APPROACHES

American League Champions Have All the Confidence in the World

Connie Mack, a Little More Conservative, Says "A Close Series"

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Writer)

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—As the Athletics go about their tasks of preparing for the world's series, they leave an impression of a college football team about to play one of its big games. So enthusiastic are the new American League champions that one would not be surprised to hear a shout, "Let's go out and see if we can find these fellows," meaning beyond question the champions of the National League.

There is no more dignified figure in baseball than Connie Mack. No man in the game has more poise than the tall tactician and yet so emphatically has the enthusiasm of the players communicated itself to one manager or vice versa, it would not seem unusual of character if the slim strategist should suddenly burst the injunction from the shadows of the dugout: "Up men and at them."

No question seems to exist in the minds of the American League as to the outcome of the important series.

LOTS OF CONFIDENCE

"We'll take 'em," is the individual and collective assurance from the twenty-five players and coaches with a hearty "Amen" from others who deal in words rather than deeds.

Mr. Mack, who has been in the game for nearly 30 years, has years of experience with the uncertainties of baseball, he suggests, "perhaps reaching the limit of seven games, although of course we shall go all in our power to bring it to a satisfactory conclusion before that."

The manager, who has spent nearly half a century dealing with the vicissitudes of the game he loves, knows that the sport chatters as it rewards and there is a baseball thorn for every rose.

He knows nothing of present-day Cubs, and has never seen them play, but as he says, any team that walks home in the National League must be good. The Athletics were not extended beyond a jog trot in the American and players and manager admit they are good.

Mr. Mack's last experience with the Cubs was nearly twenty years ago in 1910, and there is not one of the vaillant band that followed the lamented Frank Chance against the men of Mack left for the invasion nineteen years later. Neither is there an active member of the Athletics left to carry on the baseball warfare of that day.

The good Connie will have his score card above his long gray trousers legs as he did then, and Eddie Collins will shout encouragement and advice from the coaching lines, but neither will be up there swinging at fast balls and curves.

The Athletics, fairly rearing to go, are getting enough work for the important tests. If they want play in the few remaining games of the championship season, which no finger means anything, they can. If they want to loaf, it is quite all right.

The wise Mr. McGillicuddy will see that they neither go stale nor rust away the fine edge for combat.

Sir Gilbert Parker Recovers Strength

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 23.—Sir Gilbert Parker, English novelist, injured in an automobile accident in Carmel Highlands Saturday, is rapidly improving. It was reported at Merritt Hospital today. Sir Gilbert suffered a fracture of an arm and bruises in the accident.

KANSAS CITY BLUES TAKE PENNANT

Kansas City, Sept. 23.—The Kansas City Blues clinched the 1926 American Association pennant by winning the second game of a double header from Indianapolis yesterday. The victory was their 107th of the season. Indianapolis took the first game, 15 to 2. The score of the second game was 5 to 2.

Not since 1923 have the Blues won the championship. In that year they beat out St. Paul after a closer race than this year and subsequently defeated Baltimore in the International League in the "Little World Series."

This year Rochester will be the International League team representative and the first four games of the scheduled nine will be played in Kansas City, October 2, 3, 5 and 6.

CHINESE PARTY TO STUDY HEALTH

Five Members of Ministry of Health Going to Rockefeller Institute

Health conditions in China are being made a close study by the National Government, according to five members of the newly-formed Ministry of Health who arrived here yesterday by the American Mail liner President Pierce en route to New York.

The party consisted of Dr. Y. C. Sun, M.D., senior technical expert; Dr. C. C. Chien, B.S. Med., and Dr. Y. T. Yao, technical expert; Dr. T. Hsiang Wang, M.D., chief of the first division of the department of medical administration, and Dr. F. Y. Tai.

Dr. Sun, speaking for the party, said they planned to remain in the United States for about two years for the purpose of studying public health conditions. Twelve fellowships had been awarded to China by the Rockefeller Foundation and they had been pointed, he said, by Hsueh Tsi-wei, Minister of Health in the National Government, to take courses at the Rockefeller Institute.

Others would be assigned to fellowships in due course.

STUDENTS ARRIVE

Nine Chinese Government students bound to universities and colleges in the United States, arrived by the President Pierce.

Miss T. Chien will go to the University of Oregon; M. H. Dao to the University of Oregon; Fengpaung Yen to Northwestern University; Ku Tsung Ying to Stanford University; Kiang Shin Fang to North Central College; Y. F. Ma to University of Illinois; Tang Chi Mo to the University of New York; and Wu Tse, Chieh to Columbia University.

HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY FROM LAST OLD CATHEDRAL SERVICE

After referring to his own personal memories of the old cathedral, his first acquaintance with its history in 1895, later on a visit to Bishop Perrin at Bishop's Close at a period when plans for a stone cathedral had reluctantly been postponed owing to economic depression, and again in 1912, when he was the first bishop to be consecrated in the cathedral, Dr. Roper deftly described the emotions that many present were experiencing.

For a large number, he said, the cathedral was associated with very intimate domestic relationships; it was the church of their baptism, confirmation, marriage and other occasions that were sacred to them.

FRESH HOPES

Yet, he continued, the passing of the old cathedral gave rise to fresh hopes, as they contemplated the greater glory and larger ministry of the new cathedral, soon to be consecrated and opened for public worship, for prayer, meditation and for all the ministrations of the church.

The bishop ended his sermon by pointing out that any feelings of sadness should be mingled and controlled by stronger expressions of thanksgiving and gratitude.

"God has been good to you," the preacher said. "His love has followed you throughout your life." And at once, the congregation took up the refrain in the favorite hymn, "Now thank we all our God."

OTHERS PARTICIPATING

Appropriate passages from the Bible were chosen for the first and second readings, the former being read by the Dean of Columbia and the latter by the Bishop. Rev. E. W. P. Carter read the first part of evensong and Rev. F. A. Ramsey read the prayers after the third collect.

Choir and congregation joined in chanting the Eighty-fourth Psalm and in singing the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" and "The Church's One Foundation," besides those previously mentioned.

Stanley Bailey, the new cathedral organist and choirmaster, accompanied the singing on the piano.

DISMISSAL IS ASKED IN NARCOTIC CASE

session of the opium when arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers in a local hotel August 28.

FROM SHIP

Charlie Sam, it is alleged, was arrested just after he had received from "Sam the Russian," a police agent, forty-five tins of opium. The drug had, in turn, been received by "Sam the Russian" from an unknown person on one of the C.P.R. Empire liners.

Mr. Moresby cited the section of the Narcotic Drugs Act which states that when Government officers come into possession of narcotic drugs they shall turn them over to the Minister, and meanwhile the drug is lawfully in their possession.

"Sam the Russian," argued Mr. Moresby, was a police agent, therefore lawfully in possession of the opium. The drug was given to Charlie Sam so that it might reach an ultimate receiver. Therefore, held Mr. Moresby, it was still under control of the Crown, and Charlie Sam was in lawful possession.

Moreover, defence counsel claimed, there was no evidence to show Charlie Sam knew the tins contained opium. There was evidence which established that he was merely acting as a messenger.

PAYMENT DENIED

Cross-examining "Sam the Russian" at the close of the prosecution's case, Stuart Henderson, counsel for Lee Kim, Victoria merchant, confronted him with a Mr. Strachan and Rose Hutton, two girls, and asked if he had not paid them $30 to take thirty tins of opium from an Empire liner.

"Sam" denied the truth of this.

STOP-WAR NOTE OF AMBASSADOR SIDETRACKED

Story of Late M. Y. Herrick's Life Says He Desired U.S. to Act in 1914

New York, Sept. 23.—A "lost cablegram," sent by Ambassador Herrick from Paris to Washington July 28, 1914, a few hours before Austria declared war on Serbia, is made public in the opening instalment of Ambassador Herrick's biography, appearing in the October issue of The World's Work Magazine. The message, sent to William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, urged President Wilson plead for delay.

Mr. Herrick is quoted by Colonel T. Bentley Mott, his military attaché and biographer, as saying:

"Bryan never answered or acknowledged my telegram. I never knew whether Mr. Wilson ever saw it until I was in Washington a few months afterward. I then asked him. He told me he had not seen it."

GRAVEST IN HISTORY

The message was as follows: "July 28, 1914, 4 p.m.—Secretary of State, Washington. Confidential. To be communicated to the President."

"Situation in Europe is regarded here as the gravest in history. It is apprehended that civilization is threatened by generalization which would follow a general conflagration. Demonstration made against war last night by laboring classes, is said to be the first instance of its kind in France. It is felt that if Germany once mobilizes no backward step will be taken. France has strong reliance on her army, but is not giving way to undue excitement. There is a faith and reliance on our high ideals and purposes, so that I believe an expression from our nation would have a great weight in this crisis."

His opinion is encouraged by reception given utterances of British Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"I believe a strong plea for delay and moderation from the President of the United States would meet with the respect and approval of Europe and urge most prompt consideration of this question. This suggestion is consistent with our plea for arbitration and attitude toward world affairs generally. I would not appear officious, but deem it my duty to make this expression to you."

Signed, "HERRICK."

PROTECTION URGED

"A similar fate may have befallen another telegram I sent September 3," Mr. Herrick is quoted as saying. This reference was to a message sent to Mr. Bryan for comment on the Ambassador's suggestion the United States join other neutral powers in asking the embattled nations to respect and protect the museums, churches, art galleries and similar centres in invaded territory.

Capt. Matthews Big Factor In Cowichan Loss

Duncan, Sept. 23.—One of the last matches of the season was played on the Sports Ground on Thursday between teams captained by R. E. Barkley for Cowichan and A. E. S. Leggett for South Cowichan.

Cowichan's powerful hitter, Capt. A. Matthews was included in the South Cowichan eleven with disastrous results for his home club as he knocked up 88 runs in a very short time.

Capt. Matthews did not seem content to keep the ball "in" his club's grounds but insisted in placing it over the road fence. Leggett, with a well-played 42, helped Matthews along and the score amounted to 136. Cowichan could only muster 84, leaving the visitors winners by over 100 runs.

Dunlop was the only player to make any showing against the bowling of Williams, Freeman and Rhodes.

Paddles Slap Water To Keep Fish Alive

Washington, Sept. 23.—Chinese ingenuity is responsible for an effective, if not scientific, method for aerating the water in which small carp fry are transported from China to Singapore. An arrangement of floats, operated by attendants, slaps the surface of the water and drives in enough air for the fish to breathe.

The fry, according to word received by the Bureau of Fisheries from J. H. Bruuns, American Vice-consul at Singapore, are transported as deck cargo in large tubs of water.

Cultivation of carp is being carried out in well-established ponds.

British Empire Firm On Solid Foundation Of People's Character

Hon. Mr. Justice Murphy Delivers Brilliant Survey of National Trait of English People in Address Before
North Saanich Service Club on Saturday Evening.

Traits of British character which have exerted great influence in moulding the British Empire were brilliantly presented and discussed by Mr. Justice Denis Murphy on Saturday evening, at the annual banquet of the North Saanich Service Club, held at the club-rooms on the school cross road, with Capt. C. R. Wilson, as toast-master. There was a large attendance.

In his address Mr. Justice Murphy stressed aspects of British character which have had a bearing in the national life of Canada, perpetuation of which he understood to be among the primary objectives of the club.

"It is but stating an historical fact and I do so the more willingly in that so far as I am aware there is not a drop of English blood in my veins," he said, "that the character traits which have distinguished the people of England, as distinguished from the Celtic fringe by which they are surrounded and for the most part governed," he said.

And because these Celts have, as Kipling says, "under pretext of union finally and fatally subjugated the English" they can afford to be, and are in fact, generous towards their victims. Witness the great Christopher North—who as you all know was in real life the plain Scotsman, John Wilson—who in his Noctes Ambrosianae says to a brother Scot: "Minds like ours, my dear James, must always be above national prejudices and in all companies it gives me pleasure to declare that, as a people, the English are very little indeed inferior to the Scotch."

JOY IN THEIR WORK

"Whether because of their service condition, or because of their depressing climate, or for some other unknown reason, it has for centuries been characteristic of the English to take the most dismal view of their present situation and future prospects. As has been well said, 'the people of England are never so happy as when they tell themselves they are ruined.' The Celts must, perforce, not only govern them but continuously buck them up. So only a few years ago their then Welsh ruler had to say to them, 'Is it an offence, is it a mistake, is it a crime to take a hopeful view of the prospects of your own country? Why should it be? Why should patriotism and pessimism be identical? Hope is the main-spring of patriotism!'"

NO SORRY FIGURE

"May I, as one descended from the remaining branch of their Celtic fringe, the Irish, venture to suggest to them that, after all, they do not cut such a sorry figure before the bar of history. The British Empire is, in fact, something which a people may take some pride in having created and, while it is true that the traits of character exemplified in its organization are now British, by which I mean that they are the common possession of the great majority of the varied peoples living beneath the British flag, history proves that the English stock was the source from which these traits were in the main acquired," his lordship remarked.

"What then are these Empire traits of British character? Our inquiry will be aided by answering a preliminary question—What manner of thing is the British Empire itself? In the last analysis it is merely a system of government, or more correctly a congeries of systems of government. If underlying its multifarious diversity of forms are to be found the eternal principles of justice and truth then it is a pearl beyond price to be defended with our heart's blood if necessary. If, on the contrary, it is not based on these principles, then not kings, nor principalities, nor powers, nor the life-blood of its citizens will avail to preserve it."

from its fore-ordained doom of final destruction.

GREGARIOUS ANIMAL
"Whether he be a believer in an omnipotent Creator or not, no man of any intelligence can deny that he gives the matter thought at all, that the universe, as we know it, is founded on law. And of the material world, so also of the body politic of humanity. It is, and of necessity must be, based on law. Man is a social being—he may even be said to be a gregarious animal. He cannot live alone. He is bound to associate with his fellow-men. The length of time and the loss of the hall-mark of a kind—his reason. But the natural habitat of mankind—the crowd—is made up of individuals, each of whom is endowed with that most sublime but at the same time most awful gift, free will.

"Man's nature irresistibly compels association. The free will of individuals are so many contriving forces making for disruption. Hence the necessity for a curbing force if the race is not to be annihilated and that curbing force we call government. It is necessary then, from the nature of things, there must be some fundamental law on which government is to rest. All things else are governed by law; 'clearly there must be some true law whereby mankind should be governed.'"

HISTORY'S LESSON

"We can best determine this by an appeal to history. The typical product of the most ancient conception of government of which we have an authentic record was the Roman Empire. In extent, when the limitation of knowledge of the earth's surface is kept in mind, it was greater than is the British Empire; its dignity and splendour were in many respects more impressive and more dazzling; the Pax Romana was for centuries as profound as is the Pax Britannica. And yet it finally vanished from the face of the earth, crumbling into chaos in an incredibly short length of time. Its inherent apparent strength considered. Why? Because its foundations were out on the shifting sands of error," his lordship pointed out.

All the glories of the Roman Senate and the Roman Forum, of the Via Appia and the Capitol Hill; of the Roman Eagles and the Roman Coliseum reared on slavery. The system made the Roman citizen a creature of ill-cases; it made the Roman slave a beast of burden. So long as the iron force of circumstances held license in check by the necessity of discipline to accomplish military conquest, Rome prospered. With a conquered world of slaves at its feet as an inexhaustible source of tribute its decay was swift and sure. The proud boast 'Civis Romanus sum' (I am a Roman citizen), implying in the early days of the republic rigid self-control now gave place to the rabble cry 'Panem et circenses' (bread and the circus).

FEDERAL DEPOSITS

"Next came the feudal conception of government under which slavery in theory at any rate ceased to exist, but the villager was bound to the lord and the lord to the king, the paramount king by the iron law of the system. Its very essence was the submission of the individual to the state. The state was everything, the individual nothing. Its logical outcome was despotism and this was immensely strengthened by calling in the aid of religion. Violating, as it did, every principle of justice and truth it is culminated by lighting up the lurid fires of the French Revolution."

"Let us now turn for a moment to the history of the British Empire. How comes it that a numerically negligible body of men, isolated originally by their geographical position, has continuously increased in wealth and power and has painted red a full one-fourth of the land surface of the globe. It is, I believe, because dimly at first but ever working upward towards the light they based their government system on the solid rock of essential justice—liberty to all and license to none," said Judge Murphy.

STEADY PROGRESS

"Beginning as fundamentally wrong as any of their neighbors, accepting almost unthinkingly in the early days the principle of the divine right of kings, they have continuously risen to higher things. But let me not be misunderstood. Freedom under the British Empire does not necessarily mean possession of the ballot, true freedom may and does demand, in some parts of the Empire, denial of constitutional forms of government."

"That system has spread and is loved over the greater part of the world because it makes its object, not the destruction of the people or their reduction into practical slavery, but the promotion of their wealth, their number and their happiness. The destitute coolie of China, the outcast pariah of India, the breech-clad negro of South Africa and the nomad Indian of our own land, if British subjects, never appeal in vain to British power to protect them from injustice, oppression or wrong. If necessary the full might of the Empire will be exercised in their behalf. That is the true meaning of the Pax Britannica in the British Dominions," he considered.

"But what has all this to do with traits of British character? The answer is 'Everything.' The British Empire is not unique in declaring that its citizens possess such rights. The difference is that for British peoples they are actualities whereas for the citizens of other countries they are not infrequently mere grandiose verbal expressions. The law of any nation, not as written, but as carried out in actual practice, is merely a reflection of the life of its people and that life has its roots in their traits of character."

LOVERS OF ORDER

"Two outstanding attributes of the British temperament are in their love of order and their respect for and determination to have individual liberty. Associated with the first attribute are a faculty for shrewd plain common sense, an eventual first class efficiency and a capacity for keeping on, for refusing to recognize defeat until the right end is won. With the second are bound up a spirit of compromise, a

THE DOUKHOBORS

And whose law to the materialist will always be first. And this has happened to these simple people who are not worldly wise. Not wise enough to realize the fact of temporal power in a world of temporary things. As a lady correspondent said the other day, that to shepherd these people seems the best solvent of the problem. To show them gently and kindly that in a world of materialism even the Christ gave Caesar first place. To God be the worship of spirit, while however in the midst of temporary things we must do our best to obey a temporary law even if an imperfect one, waiting for the day when the force of the law will find its persuasive side and be changed for all people into love of the law. Whipping will be superseded by persuasive argument. Jail with hard labor even to one old lady of eighty-two will not have to be put in effect. Children will be left with the parents who love them because the persuasiveness of the law will accomplish what the force of the law can never do.

Meanwhile the most interesting question raised between the Attorney General and the Doukhobors is one for the theologian as to the real reason Jesus saw fit (who only is the Lord of all to put Caesar first.

DOCKERS SCORE TWICE
Esquimalt started off with the slope in their favor, which is quite an advantage. After a number of dangerous attacks on the Westholmes' goal Esquimalt finally secured the lead, Collier beating Henley, after taking a

FARQUHAR SAVES

Al. Wright, playing inside right for the Wests, broke through and sent in a fair shot, but Farquhar picked the ball out of the air and returned play to centre with a nice throw. Bob Shanks took the ball and dribbled through to send in an easy shot on Hetherington, which he stopped and kicked to centre. When the whistle blew, the ball was resting at midfield.

EASY SHOTS
Taking the kick-off, the churchmen rushed to the Wests' end, but were repelled by the Greenshirts' defence. Mulcahy took the ball and dribbled into the Five C's end. He sent in an easy shot that was blocked. Robinson secured and kicked in another floater which Farquhar punched clear. Bob Shanks again received the ball and took it to the Wests' goal on a pretty dribble, but punted it into Hetherington's arms. "Dutch" Thompson cleared with a well-placed kick. For the next ten minutes play seemed to be a draw between the two ends with the backs showing a marked superiority over the forwards of both teams.

ONLY SCORE
Borde grazed the Five C's bar with a nice head shot on a pass from "Scotty" Robinson shortly after.

The C's forced a corner two minutes later, but Thompson cleared and the ball was returned to the churchmen's end. The Five C's forwards took the ball and brought it into the Wests' ground, where Shanks passed to Cockin, Cockin dribbled in and tapped the ball into the net through Hetherington's legs as he came out to block the shot.

Although both squads tightened up after the tally they were unable to find the net during the remaining five minutes and were forced to quit the field with the count reading 1-0 for the Five C's.

"Dutch" Thompson, "Scotty" Robinson and Pat Mulcahy were the outstanding players for the Wests, while Cockin, Farquhar and Tuckwell were the pick for the Five C's.

Robb refereed and the teams lined up as follows:
Five C's: Farquhar, Harwood, Tuckwell, Reg. Shanks, McConnell, Quinn, Bob Shanks, Bradshaw, Burgess, Cockin and Sande.
Victoria Wests: Hetherington, Lloyd, Williams, Feden, Thompson, Borde, Mulcahy, Robinson, Youson, Wright and Collins.

GYROS VISIT NEW DRYDOCK

Club Members Given Demonstration at Huge Graving Basin

Miss M. Slick Outlines Plot of "Keep 'Em Smiling" Show at Luncheon

Members of the Gyro Club today visited the Dominion Government Drydock at Esquimalt after luncheon and the working of the huge basin was demonstrated.

Under the direction of Capt. O. B. Parker, the dockmaster, the Gyros visited the several units of the drydock. Fortunately for the occasion, the C.P.R. steamer Princess Charlotte was in the dock and the pumping out of the dock was aptly shown. Before leaving the basin, a vote of thanks to Capt. Parker was passed.

Miss Mabel Slick, who is in charge of the Gyro show "Keep 'Em Smiling," will be shown at the Royal Victoria Theatre, October 3, 4 and 5, addressed the club at luncheon, giving an outline of the plot of the play.

WEALTHY IN END
The show revolved around the position of one Henry Trimble in the firm of Bland & Bracken. Miss Slick explained. She described how the meek and humble Henry, buffeted about by members of the firm and loaded with debt through extravagance of his wife, finally, through no fault of his own, comes into wealth galore and a position of importance.

Frank Burton announced that tickets for the show were going well.

For the most part classes will be held this year on Monday and Thursday evenings, with some exceptions noted in the printed programme of the syllabus. The classes include commercial, technical and engineering courses, building trades, art courses and fine arts, household economics, dressmaking, millinery, home nursing and hygiene, cooking, languages, public speaking, matriculation subjects, and continuation classes leading to High School entrance.

Under each of the headings a detailed statement of the variety of courses open to night school students of all ages is set out in the printed syllabus. Copies may be secured from Mr. Binns, whose office is in the southwest wing of the City Hall, with entrance from Pandora Avenue.

MYSTERY MAN USES STRATEGY

Hunts Himself and Fools Searchers; Has $30 To-day

Reminiscent of a famous battle strategy was the method adopted by Mr. Majestic, "The Mystery Man," in evading his would-be captors on Saturday afternoon. Remembering that the best defence is a good offence, he visited one of the Majestic radio dealers' stores for a copy of the Majestic folder, "The Voice of the Air."

Man himself. He accosted quite a number of men dressed in dark blue, but none of them thought of asking the man who addressed them if he was the "Mystery Man."

ENDS THIS WEEK
To-day Mr. Majestic is in town between 2 and 6 p.m., dressed in dark blue, with $30 in his pocket to give away. Ten dollars will be added every Thursday, and for Friday and Saturday the amount will be $20. A new model of Majestic radio, it is possible that the mystery man will have both cash and a Majestic radio to give away when the contest enters its final stage on Friday morning.

LATE ADMIRAL STATIONED HERE

Sir Hedworth Meux Was at Esquimalt Forty Years Ago Flag-lieutenant

The recent death in England of Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux will recall to many old-time Victorians the time when this famous sailor was stationed at Esquimalt nearly forty years ago. He was then Sir Hedworth Lambton and was flag-lieutenant on Admiral Levesque's flagship, H.M.S. Swiftsure.

The fleet of the United States, including four vessels, H.M.S. Swiftsure, H.M.S. Amphion, H.M.S. Icarus and H.M.S. Champion. The Amphion was a second-class cruiser and was noted for her speed, attaining up to twenty-one knots, a high speed for those days. On one occasion, while conveying Lord Stanley, the then Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Stanley to Vancouver from Esquimalt, the Amphion ran ashore in the fog at Active Pass, and the hull was ripped open on the rocks. Part of the crumpled keel of the Amphion now lies alongside the Chinese bell in Beacon Hill Park.

The viceregal party was brought back to Victoria and the affair later had an interesting sequel. In the wake of an open court-martial, the first in Esquimalt to which the press was admitted, on the officers in charge of the vessel.

POLICE BALL NOVEMBER 8

Annual Function of Department at Empress Hotel This Year as Usual

The date for the annual Victoria Police Department ball has been fixed as November 8, it was announced by Sergeant Arthur Bishop, in the police morning. As usual the function will be held in the Empress Hotel.

Chief of Police John Fry is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements and promises an enjoyable time for all those attending. Recent alterations at the Empress Hotel, providing additional space, will serve to accommodate the usual large crowd that is expected.

Publisher Visiting Here
R. M. Glover, publisher of The Peterborough Examiner, reached the city yesterday from the Ontario city in company with Mrs. Glover.
They are at the Empress Hotel with Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Whitcroft of Vancouver.

Fine is $10 For Passing School Fast

The first prosecution for passing a Victoria school at too fast a rate of speed in an automobile since signs were erected by order of the Police Commission recently took place in City Police Court this morning, a fine of $10 being imposed on the offender, who pleaded guilty.

Magistrate George Jay commented upon the fact that the clause requiring motorists to slow down when passing a school had been in the motor act for a number of years but that signs had only been installed lately in the city.

Sir John Allen Making Study of Immigration

British-Parliamentarian Will Address Canadian Club Luncheon To-morrow

Will Discuss Immigration Matters With Premier To-morrow

Sir John Sandeman Allen, Conservative member for the West Derby division for Liverpool in the British House of Commons, reached the city this afternoon from Vancouver. With Lady Sandeman Allen he will be the guest of the Lieutenant-Governor R. Randolph Bruce for several days at Government House.

Accompanying him is Mr. Manisty, son of Judge Manisty of Cambridge University, who is making contacts with Canadians.

TO SPEAK HERE
Sir John Sandeman Allen will to-morrow address a luncheon of the Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel. While here he will discuss immigration matters with Premier S. F. Tolmie and other members of the Provincial Cabinet.

SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION
"There are plenty of the right kind of people who want to settle in Canada," said Sir John in an interview. "I believe, however, in more selective immigration for Canada and think the voluntary societies can do much toward helping in this work."

"I am also of the opinion that immigrants should be given assistance for the first year."

Three or four old days, there was little assistance for settlers, but times have changed. Then all settlers were under the same conditions, but now, if new immigrants are to get a footing, they require some assistance and supervision. "Great Britain should be prepared to give this assistance and I think she will."

OF FARMING STOCK
Sir John comes from stock which has farmed in Yorkshire for a long time. His son has reverted to the family characteristic and is operating a mixed farm in the vicinity of Prince Albert in Saskatchewan.

His brother, who has been visiting here, has announced she is to marry a Canadian farmer, and Sir John and Lady Sandeman will hurry back to Saskatchewan for the wedding, following the Victoria visit.

HIS CAREER
Sir John, who retired from business in 1920, when he operated the largest marine insurance underwriting business in England, was knighted for his public service activities. He has devoted the last eight years to the service of Great Britain and the Empire and has been entrusted with numerous public and private missions. Sir John was chairman of the Liverpool Salvage Association, chairman of the Liverpool Underwriters' Association, and chairman of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce. He was a lecturer on foreign trade at Liverpool University in 1923. He was also a member of the Committee of Lloyd's Register, member of the council of the International Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the transport section at headquarters in Paris.

Sir John is a member of the executive committee of The Pilgrims. He was also a member of the Royal Colonial Institute, vice-chairman of the Joint East African Advisory Board and honorary secretary of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce.

"Hot-dog" Chef Fined; "Wienie" Puzzles Court

Peter Lanchick was charged in City Police Court this morning with carrying on the business of a hawker without a license and was fined $5.

A description of the "hot dogs" sold by the accused was one of the highlights of the hearing. Sgt. Arthur Bishop laid the information, described them as buns with a "wienie" between, flavored with a certain amount of mustard and onions.

Magistrate Jay suggested it should be called a sausage, because a "wienie" might mean anything.

"Of course," His Honor remarked, "a sausage might mean anything, for that matter."

Constable Frederick Woolsey gave a similar description as that given by Sergeant Bishop.

Lanchick was convicted when he told the court he did not have a license in his own name at the time he had thought one taken out by his daughter would suffice. He had since secured a license in his own name, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Alder and Mr. Harold E. Alder have returned to their home on Hampshire Road, after a motor trip of several weeks through California.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

Chicago, Sept. 22.—With elevators at all points in this country and Canada bulging with wheat and the volume of exports very moderate, the situation looks extremely heavy. European demand for wheat so far this season has been discouragingly light, and the thought is suggested that requirements are not large this year.

"At present there is little investment buying of corn, it being the belief of many traders that decline in prices to around 90 cents for December would put the market in a position where some action could be expected."

"Shorts in September corn have taken profits and the market little support, but longs in December liquidated freely and the country holders, who have held their cash corn at 1 to 2 cents above the market, offered it at flat market and are said to have sold 100,000 bushels to arrive. There is a possibility of an embargo against Minneapolis and Duluth. Buyers are practically out of the market in Minneapolis."

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 22.—Nearly three-fourths of the large part of the Illinois corn crop is past danger of serious frost damage. The Tribune crop survey reports. Government crop statisticians report forty per cent of the corn is mature enough to withstand frost.

Winnipeg, Sept. 22.—The market was heavy during the first half of today's session when prices declined from 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 under the close Saturday but all losses were more than regained later in the day when shorts were forced to cover due to an advance of two cents in Chicago, based on reported frosts in Argentina and to Babson's prediction that all grains were headed for higher levels.

However, the advance did not bring in any new buying, and after the shorts were satisfied, the market again eased off. There was a small export business worked over the week-end, the UKAY taking some No. 2 Northern and the continent a little No. 5 and there was a fairly good demand for cash from shippers who were taking practically all grades that were coming out, but the offerings were again light and spread firm.

Export sales and the cash demand were both considerably smaller than general at this time of the year. There was some good buying in the pit on the early decline by strong interests which probably reflected the export business done by the terminal elevators in North America still getting larger, the bulges are bound to meet with heavy resistance, so long as export business is miserably slow.

Rains were reported falling in both Argentina and Australia which will be very beneficial, and light frosts would not harm the Argentine crop at the present stage. Millers report a fair domestic business, but flour exports are practically nil. The market closed heavy.

Coarse Grains: Outside of a light domestic business in oats there was very little doing in coarse grains. There was no pressure on the oat market, offerings being extremely light, but export business is needed in both barley and rye.

Flax: This market continued draggy with the deferred months weak. No feature with demand very poor.

Increased returns

Widespread investment connections enable The Canada Trust Company to secure a higher average rate of interest upon estate funds than the average individual executor or trustee could obtain. And The Canada Trust Company's fee for administering an estate is no more than would be allowed an individual executor. The fee—in either case—is fixed by the Court.

WHITNEY LETTER

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)

New York, Sept. 23.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Bureau, says today:

UNIFORMLY STRONG

"After having gone through a period of high irregularity with many parts of the list decidedly reactionary, I think it can be said that the market has reached a point where it is making its stand preparatory to exhibiting a fair degree of uniformity on the upside. In the closing sessions of last week a large amount of short selling was evident and I think that this side became altogether too popular. Whenever this is the case and irrespective of the longer term outlook, it can be counted upon that a general market rally will develop and I think this is exactly what will happen this week. "Insofar as the leaders are concerned, expect nothing more than a partial retracement of the ground they have lost in the last few weeks and while expecting few if any new highs in them, I believe that the retracement will serve to lift the pressure from the general market sufficiently to permit the 20 per cent of the list that we have been talking about to do its work. This 20 per cent consists of that group of medium priced stocks that have been under accumulation for the last few months and which can easily occupy speculative attention in the next advance to the complete exclusion of what have been previously recognized leaders.

"Expect call money to continue relatively cheap during the coming week and not trouble the market any more in the future as it has in the past. What has troubled the market is simply that too many issues advanced to prices no longer attractive to banking interests. Further bull movement is therefore slow to be looked for in the 20 per cent of the list which has not been over priced on its fundamentals.

COMMENT— "Public Service of New Jersey even at its new high level has still far to go, the important thing at the moment is to bear in mind that the same thing is going to apply to Consolidated Gas.

"Matheson Alkali also made a new record Saturday and while I do not know exactly how high it will go, I do know that it will sell considerably higher than in the past. "Republic is being bought by investors who express little opinion on the stocks as a group but I have the opinion that Republic is going much higher.

"As far as the others are concerned I think their reaction definitely ended Saturday and allowing a day or two for returning movement to become established, expect the entire group to start up early this week. "American International shows a good profit from the level where it recently recommended, but there is no need to take profits as I expect the next move to place it considerably above 100. Advise its purchase under what now stands as its top for the year.

"White Rock will soon reflect marketwise the conclusions of a committee which is working out a plan to retire the second preferred and will recommend an increase in the dividend to the board of directors. It is a buy under its high of the year.

"American International, United Gas Improvement, United Corporation and Gold Dust."

Germans to Raise

New Loans in U.S.

New York, Sept. 23.—While there has been an almost complete absence of new borrowing abroad recently, because of the state of the bond market in the United States, new loans will be quickly consummated for Germany as soon as the American market improves, according to a radio report on German financial and business conditions, received by the Department of Commerce today.

COLE CARBON MEAT DROPS ONE MOOSE PARLEY
RISES 20 POINTS; CENT, BUT EGGS
GARDNER MOTOR JUMP UP TWO TO MAKE CHEAP FRONT RIVE CAR

New York, Sept. 23.—R. E. Gardner Jr., president of Gardner Motor Car Company Inc., announced in St. Louis today that Gardner will exhibit at the New York Automobile Show in January a front-wheel drive automobile of new design, to be sold at a popular price. This follows the remarkable success that has met the introduction of a front-wheel drive by Auburn Co. Mr. Gardner also stated that the aviation division of the Gardner company has been merged with the Detroit Aircraft Corporation on favorable terms.

New York, Sept. 23.—The market was about a stand-off today with the Dow Jones average of 303.12 at the close, standing at 359.00 off 3.60 points for the day, and for 20 cents at 181.04, off 30 cents for the day.

The banks called $30,000,000 in loans, and call money rose from 8 to 10 per cent.

Chicago Northwestern attracted attention by staging a rise of 20 points, from 237 to a new record high at 257.12.

Underwood rose from 160 to a new high at 167.

Among the other issues to establish new highs today were Matheson Alkali, United Gas Improvement, Public Service of New Jersey, General American Tank, Atlantic Gulf.

The motor stocks were again on the slump. Among those which broke to new lows for the year, to-day were Chrysler, Nash, Overland, Studebaker, Stewart Warner, Graham Paige, Briggs Body, Brockway.

"Construction price movements are still confined to issues in which special developments are present to provide the impetus for an advance," Fenner and Beane commented today. "Indications are that merger movements in public utilities will continue."

Prince and Whitney say the "railroad companies are making too much money to justify selling at a price which is approaching a recovery period, or at least a rally from the unsettlement of the second half of last week, we would recommend for trading purchases of such issues as Gold Dust, International Nickel, U.S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, United Corporation, Continental Can, Allegheny Corporation, Woolworth, Westinghouse, Brake and Electric Power and Light, H. P. Bliss of E. S. Pierce and Co. said.

The succession of sharp setbacks since the highs of the first few days of September and the inability of the market to sustain an advance on a relatively broad front, naturally, have increased uncertainty and created the condition where long stocks are less confidently held.

These developments, however, have not brought about a situation where liquidation seems to be spreading to a point where it can be called general.

"Signs are wanting in the general business prospect to establish a basis for general liquidation of seasoned common stocks."

Radio Corporation had a swift dip today, but present price for Radio are seen as offering an excellent opportunity to accumulate the stock for substantial advances later in the year.

The company's business is rapidly expanding and its earnings for the latter half of 1929 are expected to be of record proportions.

Simmons has acted well during all reactions recently. The recent acquisition of the Berkeley and Gay Furniture Co. marks the entrance of Simmons into a new field which will greatly broaden its activities. Moreover, the company's earnings possibilities have also been substantially increased by the introduction of new products.

Montgomery Ward is meeting with buying on all minor reactions. The company's sales and earnings are showing a substantial gain for the corresponding months of 1928, and should establish a new all-time high in the current year. The company's retail division is rapidly progressing and is making a strong case for dependence upon the agricultural trade.

Recent action of Public Service of New Jersey has indicated the rapidly diminishing floating supply of the issue. Large blocks of the stock have been taken out of the market by various holding and investment companies and from now on Public Service should reflect any further buying by advances in market price.

Dan McKenzie, convicted in city police court this morning on a charge of permitting drunkenness at his home, 623 Pembroke Street, was fined $50 in default of payment, thirty days imprisonment.

Chief of Police John Fry and Constable Charles Greiner testified for the prosecution, stating they had found the accused and three women in the house at dusk when they visited it at 7 o'clock last night. A quart gin bottle, practically empty, and two full bottles of loganberry wine, seized on the premises, were exhibited.

Mckenzie, who claimed that two of the women had arrived just before the police came, admitted that one quart of rum and four bottles of loganberry wine had been consumed in the place between Saturday and Sunday night.

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

"How am I going to tell her?" Helen asked herself in suddenly deepening reluctance to break her news.

"My name is Helen," Brent said when Mrs. Ennis moved forward a chair for her. "I have come on an unhappy errand."

Mrs. Ennis looked worried.

"You sit down," Helen said impulsively, motioning to the chair that was offered her.

Mrs. Ennis mechanically seated herself, feeling a premonition of trouble.

"What is it?" she asked quaveringly.

"It's about your daughter," Helen answered gently.

"Eva?" Mrs. Ennis cried: "what has happened to her? Oh, tell me, tell me!"

Helen could not stop to think of a way to soften the blow in the face of the mother's suspense.

"She's met with an accident," she said slowly, "she isn't badly hurt, but she wants you."

"Where is she? Take me to her!" "She's in the Good Shepherd Hospital," Helen replied. "I'll take you there at once, in my car."

"I'll get my things," Mrs. Ennis cried, turning toward the door to the hall.

Just as she reached it Helen heard the front door open and close again, and Mrs. Ennis cry: "Bob! Bob! Eva's been hurt!"

"Mom!" It was a heartfelt protest, and it came straight to Helen and clawed at her conscience like a demon.

She saw the mother go into a pair of masculine arms and cling there for a moment, sobbing uncontrollably.

"Tell me about it," she heard the man called Bob say.

"I don't know how it happened; I'm going to the hospital. There's a young lady in the sitting room who came for me. You'll go with us too?"

Helen saw Mrs. Ennis release herself and hurry up the stairs.

A moment later she was facing Bob. He came across the room and stood quite close to her. "What happened," he said quietly, tensely, "to my sister?"

CHAPTER XVI

Helen felt like a prisoner at the bar. The brother knew, she was certain, that she would not be here unless she had had something to do with the accident.

She turned a little cold and her hands trembled in spite of her effort to remain calm and return his steady glance unwaveringly. Because of this she raised her head with a touch of defiance.

"I struck her with my car," she said telly.

The brother reached out and caught her arm. Helen winced.

"Forgive me," he apologized, recovering himself instantly. "Eva is very dear to me."

All Helen's hardness vanished. "Need I say I'm sorry?" she asked.

"She'll be all right, soon," Helen told him. "Dr. Parkey pronounced her in no danger, but she is in pain." Her voice broke a trifle and she got and now... now maybe you've crippled her hands!"

"Oh no," Helen cried out.

"Well, it isn't your fault that you haven't. Her luck held, that was all. But you might have ruined her life. Why? Just because you've a speed mania and money to satisfy it with a fast car. And nothing to do but tear around the country looking for thrills."

Helen was slightly gaping now, but she noticed that he made a remarkably striking picture in his anger.

She forgot that he was merely scolding a girl for her irresponsibility, and that she was that girl. Her mind had become a sensitive plate upon which his personality was etching itself for all time to come. His personality and his appearance.

Commonplace, perhaps, the blueness of his eyes, but lifted into a class of exceptional distinction by the fine cut of his features and the virile quality of his mind that revealed itself in his flashing expressions and vibrant voice.

He was still tirading against modern youth while Helen sat speechless, when someone came in to tell him he could go to his sister's room.

"I'll wait to take your mother back," Helen said to him.

"Don't bother," he replied curtly. "We'll take a taxi."

Helen bit her underlip until it hurt.

"But I must see your mother again," she protested.

"don't think she will want to see you when she knows that it was you who ran Eva down," Bob paused at the door to say.

Nevertheless Helen waited, held by a persistence that made her wish to suffer to the fullest for her fault.

She was prepared, when Mrs. Ennis returned, to face a second tirade, or at least a harsh attitude. Instead of the tirade she had tried to thank her for her kindness.

Bob stood by scowling darkly.

"I know you couldn't help it," Mrs. Ennis said chokingly.

"I wish you would," she said suddenly with tears.

"I want to do everything I can for her," she said feelingly. "It was my fault and I'm dreadfully sorry. She isn't suffering so much now, is she?"

"No, she's quiet. And she will soon be able to take her home."

The mother gave Helen's hand a friendly pressure and the girl repeated her with a swift embrace. It was the first she'd ever given to a mother, and though the impulse had torn through the effect of years of reserve it was not robbed of its simple pleasure.

"You will let me drive you home?" Helen pleaded.

"Of course we will," Mrs. Ennis answered hastily. "But you need a bit of driving after yourself. I think perhaps Bob had better drive you home."

Helen carefully avoided looking at Bob. "I'm cured of reckless driving," she said soberly.

She rather fancied she heard a faint "Humph" from Bob but still she did not look at him.

"Let's go then," Mrs. Ennis suggested. "Bob must have his supper and father will be wondering what become of us. We should have left a message."

"He telephoned," Bob told her, and Helen nodded to herself that he had an extremely cool head for one who could become so heated while indicting a person.

Bob did not offer to take the wheel on the return drive and Helen felt that he was testing her nerve.

For the first time in her life she called upon the strength that is derived from the polished word and will her trembling to cease.

It didn't cease but she drove creditably, and though white-hot points were brewed through to the surface of her entire body she yielded not one outward sign of her nervousness.

But when she said the car to a stop before the Ennis home the strain had become unbearable. A sigh of relief rose from the bottom of her heart. She barely managed to suppress it.

"You will stay for a cup of tea?" Mrs. Ennis invited as Bob got out of the car and turned to assist her.

Helen shook her head. "My grammar family is waiting for me at home," she explained.

Mrs. Ennis did not repeat the invitation. She knew that Helen did not belong to the modest social world in which she and her children moved.

Helen's lavish provision for Eva's comfort was sufficient proof to her that she belonged to a wealthy family.

She had been uneasy about offering her humble hospitality. Helen's refusal lifted a burden from her mind.

"But you will go to see Eva?" she urged. "She wants to thank you for your kindness."

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly's Popping Ears

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

(By HOWARD H. GARIS)

Once upon a time Uncle Wiggly hopped down off the steps of his bungalow, dragging after him a little red express wagon.

"What in the world are you doing now?" asked Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig who was waddling along.

"Are you taking some of your little bunny children's play toys?"

"Oh, no," Uncle Wiggly answered. "I am going to have some fun. Do you want to come along?"

Mr. Twistytail was always fond of fun so he said he would go with the rabbit gentleman. They strolled along together until they met Baby Bunt.

"The little orphan rabbit."

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly," called Bunt.

"Where are you going?"

"To have some fun," answered Mr. Longears. As Bunt had no other home, Uncle Wiggly and his wife let her live with them. "Jolly good fun," laughed Uncle Wiggly. "Want to come along, Bunt?"

You may be sure Bunt did not come along. She was a little red wagon for Uncle Wiggly.

What's the little red wagon for?

she asked Uncle Wiggly.

"You'll soon see," was the answer.

All three of them skipped along and pretty soon they met Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow.

"Where are you going?" asked the puppy dog boys.

"To have some fun," said Uncle Wiggly. "Want to come along?"

"Oh, thank you, yes!" barked Jackie and Peetie, so they wagged along with the others and now it was quite a party.

"What's the little red wagon for?" asked Peetie, who was fond of questions.

"You'll soon see," spoke Uncle Wiggly and he didn't say anything more. But Baby Bunt, Mr. Twistytail and the two puppies were very curious about what the rabbit gentleman could be going to do with the little red wagon.

Pretty soon Uncle Wiggly reached a field of green corn, where the ears were well grown on the stalks.

"Help me gather some of these ears," said the rabbit gentleman. So the pig, the little orphan Baby Bunt and Jackie and Peetie pulled ears of corn.

"Now you will find out what the little red cart is for," said Uncle Wiggly with a laugh, and he piled the ears of corn in the cart. So that was that, but still Baby Bunt wanted to know.

"When are we going to have fun?" "Pretty soon," said Uncle Wiggly. "Pull the cart along, Jackie and Peetie. Because the puppies were good little dogs, Uncle Wiggly let them do this.

"Well," said Baby Bunt, "they may be having fun but I aren't," and she twinkled her tiny, pink nose just the least little bit.

"The fun will begin pretty soon," said Uncle Wiggly. So he led them along until they came to a little dingy dell, which is a pretty place in the woods. Uncle Wiggly found some flat stones, out of which he made a fireplace, and then he said to Bunt and the little dogs:

"Now you go over by the brook and wash your paws and when you come back I will have a surprise for you, and it will be fun."

"Oh!" cried Baby Bunt. "Oh! Oh!" barked Peetie and Jackie.

When the children were at the brook Uncle Wiggly and Mr. Twistytail built a fire on the stones and Mr. Longears said:

"The surprise is that I'm going to roast some ears of corn for them. Won't that be fun?"

"Jolly fun," grunted Mr. Twistytail. "I love corn!"

Soon there was a fine, hot fire on the stones and the ears of corn were ready for roasting the ears. Uncle Wiggly stripped off the husks and laid the ears on the coals to roast. But, all of a sudden, after a while, when the ears were smelling most lovely, there was a sudden popping sound.

"Bang! Bang! Pippity pop!" Some-thing like his flakes of snow fell all about the fire, and he made a fire-corn was smelling most lovely, there was a sudden popping sound.

"Bang! Bang! Pippity pop!" Some-thing like his flakes of snow fell all about the fire, and he made a fire-corn was smelling most lovely, there was a sudden popping sound.

"Oh!" cried Baby Bunt. "What is it, Uncle Wiggly?"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit. "This is the fun. One of the ears was popcorn and it is now popping. But it won't hurt you. Ha! Ha!"

Then Bunt laughed and so did the

DOROTHY DIX

How do you take criticism? Does it just make you angry and resentful and cause you to dislike the person who has had the effrontery to find fault with you, or do you profit by criticism and correct the weakness that has been pointed out to you?

Naturally none of us enjoy being criticised. It hurts our vanity too badly. It is too much like being skinned alive. We would fain believe that our fellow creatures observe no flaw in us and that they can only find words of fulsome praise in which to speak of our transcendent virtues. Of course, we find plenty of defects in our family and friends and neighbors about which we feel called upon to make invidious remarks, but as for ourselves—oh, well, that's something different. Quite different. In fact, altogether different.

Now in our saner and less ego-tistic moments we are bound to realize that we all fall under the same condemnation. None of us escape "being talked about," as the phrase goes. Other people discuss our foibles just as we discuss theirs, for criticism is the indoor and outdoor sport of which we never tire, and which we are always ready to join in.

This being the case, and as we well know that we furnish the subject for the vivisection meeting when two or three of our friends are gathered together, and that they pass an enjoyable hour picking to pieces our little peculiarities and frailties, isn't it a pity that we don't often turn the painful ordeal to profit? For our acquaintances get a clearer perspective view than we possibly can upon ourselves, and their strictures often call attention to little defects that we never dreamed existed in our flawless persons.

This would give us a chance to correct our faults, to strengthen our weak places and to stave off a thousand ills that befall us. Viewed in this way our critics would become our best friends and we should welcome their comments upon us, instead of getting peeved over them.

Mrs. A., for instance, considers it nothing but cattiness when she hears that Mrs. B. has said that her new jade-green hat and ensemble makes her look like a saleratus biscuit. But instead of getting angry with Mrs. B., why shouldn't Mrs. A. go into executive session with her mirror and find out if Mrs. B. hasn't told the truth, and that it is a fact that green makes her look bilious and is the most unbecoming shade that she can possibly wear? That bit of information would not only save her money in the beauty parlor, but would prevent her having to hear the further criticism of about how she has fallen off in her looks.

Similarly Mrs. C. resents some one remarking that she is getting fat, but if, instead of regarding it as an insult, she would take it as a tip to begin counting her calories in time, it would enable her to remain a perfect 32, instead of becoming an awful 46. And Mrs. D. could prevent herself being a figure of fun if she would heed the suggestions of those of her family who tell her how ridiculous old mutton is dressed up like spring lamb.

And there is Mrs. E., who spoils her children rotten, and whose youngsters are growing up undisciplined, untalented, ill-mannered. She gets perfectly furious when she hears that the neighbors say that they are the worst reared children in town, but she would save herself a lot of heartache and misery and shame if she would profit by the criticisms of her youngsters and correct their faults while there is yet time to do so.

And there is Mrs. X., from whom everybody flees at sight, because that once she fixes them with her glittering eye, she will tell them a tale longer than the ancient mariner's about all the smart things her baby says and all the details of Bobby's school days and how perfectly marvelous he is, and all about Mary's heading for how many millions a week propose to her. Suppose Mrs. X. kept her ear to the ground and profited by the criticism she heard of her conversational line. Wouldn't it shut her up as if she had been stricken dumb?

And wouldn't it turn about half the men and women who are failures in life into successes if they would only receive criticism in the right spirit and profit by it, instead of its making them angry because it wounds their self-love? For, after all, the world is not particularly careful about hurting our feelings and there is no conspiracy of silence to keep us from finding out what it thinks of our weaknesses. On the contrary, it jumps on our toes roughshod and most of us have had our faults pointed out to us time and again. But all that it has done for us is to prejudice us against the one who bore the bad news.

The pretty little stenographer thinks her boss is a grouch when he criticizes her for coming late and for spending most of her time making up her face and putting on another layer of lipstick, but she doesn't change in time to keep from losing her job.

The man who is so untidy and slovenly looking that nobody wants him around has been criticized for his sloppiness ever since he was a child. The man who bores people to tears talking about himself has been told about it a thousand times, and they go on wondering why they can never sell themselves to an employer, and it never occurs to them that it is because they would never correct the faults that were pointed out to them.

Perhaps the worst phase of this matter is that husbands and wives cannot help each other as they should, because neither one will stand any criticism from the other. Often one or the other sees the other doing something that is bound to wreck their marriage, but he or she dares not mention it for fear of wounding the other past forgiveness.

The husband cannot say to the wife: You disillusion me by your lack of reserve, or by your untidy dress, or you bore me with talking continually about your mother and sisters, or you are making me hate you by your nagging. The wife cannot say to her husband: You have the table manners of a boor, or you disgust me with your slovenliness, or I shudder at your grammar every time you speak.

Very often either the husband or the wife has had much better advantages of education and social contact than the other, yet they cannot pass on to the other these advantages, because if only one of them is not to be thought perfect.

What a pity that our vanity will not let us profit by criticism!

Roman Boy Preached At Grandmother's Funeral. The grandmother of Octavius was dead. Octavius, a little Roman boy of many, many years ago, was broken-hearted for he had adored his grandmother. She had been a very learned and noble woman, as well as kind and loving. Since this was in the days before Christianity, there was no minister at funerals. It was, however, the custom for some member of the family, or some learned friend of the family, to give what was known as a funeral oration. This was a speech about the one who was dead, and was always supposed to be beautiful and full of wisdom. Octavius was only twelve years old, but he begged to be allowed to give his grandmother's funeral oration. His mother urged that, though it might seem strange, she should be allowed to do so. She was sure he could speak as well as any grown person. So the boy gave the funeral sermon, and he spoke so beautifully and wisely that all who heard him were struck with wonder.

Octavius-Caesar-Augustus grew up to become a great emperor of Rome. He was born September 23, 63 B.C. (Copy, 1929, by Republic Syn., Inc.)

To-morrow's Horoscope

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1929

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrologers. The early morning hours are not so well directed as those that come later. This is read as a warning, especially for those who make journeys on any sort of financial mission. In the early hours to-day danger of quarrels over money matters is seen, and for that reason it is well to avoid financial transactions wherever there is any question to be settled. The day is read as favorable to certain phases of business with banks and bankers. It is a day inauspicious for those who desire loans. All the seers foretell the planning of gigantic development enterprises for various parts of the United States. New cities are to rise in places that apparently were uninhabited. Under this planetary rule leaders of thought should be active, for tremendous achievements are promised for the next few months. This direction of the stars is most favorable for aviation and for air adventures which make history by establishing new standards. It is read as a lucky day for beginning any activity, whether in business or social affairs. Honors will come to women as well as men as the year draws to a close. American diplomats will be especially recognized for higher service, it is predicted.

Again fairs and expositions come under a rule that is read as most promising. Investors should benefit. Educators now are subject to aspects supposed to make for efforts to mould characters as well as brains. Universities are to institute reforms of wide scope that will improve the standards of modern life, the seers prophesy. Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of surpassing good luck. Promotions are assured for those who are employed. Children born on this day probably will be well endowed with the reasoning faculty, generally intelligent and remarkably fearless in their opinions. Zachary Taylor, twelfth president of the United States, was born on this day, 1784. It was also the birthday of John Marshall, statesman, 1755. (Copyright, 1929)

PLANE LANDED ON ONE WHEEL

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 23.—The difficult feat of landing an aeroplane on one wheel was accomplished by Lieut. Charles Roy last evening shortly after he had taken off from the local airport with a woman passenger. Just as the plane took the air watchers at the field saw the right wheel drop off, and air club officials attracted Roy's attention to the loss.

Roy circled above the field to make a perfect landing on the one wheel with a slanting plane. The plane settled on the ground without a jar, switching to the right slightly as the remaining left wheel swung around. The plane was not damaged. More than 700 watchers at the field witnessed the incident, fearing the plane would crash as it came to earth.

HONOR ALPINE CLUB LEADER

Presentation Made to C. L.
Harrison By Members of Island Branch

C. L. Harrison, programme and outings convener of the Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada, was honored Saturday afternoon by members of the club who showed their appreciation of the fine leadership displayed by Mr. Harrison on various occasions.

Mr. Harrison was presented with a beautiful model of a cairn, executed in hammered silver and taking the practical form of a cigarette lighter. The presentation took place at the home of Mrs. A. V. Wollaston and the Misses Nancy and Katherine Wollaston, 1289 Hampshire Road.

Gordon Cameron, secretary of the local club, and Mrs. Hugh McKennie officiated on behalf of the club. Mr. Cameron, in a short address, noted that the souvenir was intended as a genuine tribute of appreciation from the members of the club. He recalled how Mr. Harrison had infused new life into the club and made it one of the largest and most active branches of the Canadian organization.

Mrs. Harrison, who has supplemented her husband's interest in the organization, was the recipient of a beautiful plant.

Tea was served prior to the presentations, the hostess being assisted by her daughters and the Misses Marjorie and Mary Haynes.

BRITISH EMPIRE FIRM ON SOLID FOUNDATION OF PEOPLE'S CHARACTER

broad tolerance and most notable sense of fair play that demands a square deal for all.

"Their love of order and attachment to individualism are embodied in the crowning glory of the British people, the common law of England. From the Roman law throughout all British political organizations. The common law of England is the only great system of jurisprudence besides the Roman law in existence. It is the key-note of Magna Charta, for in brief it means, as Maitland wrote: 'That the King is and shall be below the law.' This makes for natural unity and for equality, not indeed in position or social status, but in the very important sense that all citizens, high or low, have a formally equal standing before the law," he said.

POWER BEHIND LAW

"But all this is of little avail unless the law is actually enforced. And the British love of order secured not only a system of equality of law but insists upon enforcement. No greater test of national stamina can be made than by placing the enforcement of the law in the hands of the people themselves as is done under the common law by the jury system. He who runs may rest the truth of this assertion by contrasting the work of juries under the British flag with their work in other jurisdictions. And because this lover of order is now a universal British trait that remark is true of all British communities," Judge Murphy said.

"The Common Law exemplifies another trait of British character, their matter of fact attitude towards rights. It does not set the main declare rights; it furnishes remedies for wrongs. The reason for this is that the British are wary of abstract principles and of grandiose theories. Napoleon in Egypt said: 'Soldiers, forty centuries are looking down upon you from those pyramids.' No English general would address his troops. At this stage of the war, the British common sense bent of mind was in operation. The world had not gone mad. So reasoned that attitude changed and the whole Empire simultaneously sprang to arms. What caused this sudden metamorphosis? The rape of Belgium by Germany. That deed outraged the British sense of fair play. It was not cricket. It was not playing the game. Because from the British point of view those who do such things must be called to stern account, the British people, from August 4, 1914, to November 11, 1918, as Kipling expresses it, doggedly 'trod the wine press of the wrath of God.'

"The General Strike in Great Britain furnishes another exemplification. It was not fair; it was not cricket. It was not playing the game. Because from the British point of view those who do such things must be called to stern account, the British people, from August 4, 1914, to November 11, 1918, as Kipling expresses it, doggedly 'trod the wine press of the wrath of God.'

"Such then are some of the traits of British character. An innate love of order, a common sense attitude towards reality, a first rate efficiency, a congenial incapacity to recognize defeat much less acknowledge it, a passion for individual liberty, a spirit of compromise, a broad tolerance, above all a militant sense of fair-play—these are some of the national attributes that have produced that strange amorphous thing, that mass of contradictions, the British Empire.

"It defies all attempts at logical analysis. What, for instance, can be more anomalous than for a single foreign political entity to be represented at foreign capitals by two, even three, and it may be shortly by half a dozen ministers, all having equal rank and all exercising equal authority? The British Empire works successfully. Nay, it does much more. It picks at the heart strings of its far-flung peoples and sets their innermost vibrations to such mystic haunting melodies of love for itself as a political institution that it has become impregnable to external attack. Because of its sur-dominant common sense.

"What of their passion for individual liberty?" he inquired. Order requires the enforcement of rules of conduct, and such enforcement amounts pro tanto to a curtailment of the liberty of the individual. Here was the age old problem of government. How and to whom to commit the making and enforcement of these rules of conduct, laws as we call them, without imperilling personal freedom? In their homely matter of fact way, the British proceeded by centuries of experiment and struggle—including more than one civil war—were gone through before they hit upon a satisfactory answer to this question by establishing responsible government.

CABINET GOVERNMENT

"A committee known as the 'Cabinet' was in practice to control both law making and law enforcement. Characteristically enough no formal legal status was given to this committee. To this day the existence of the Cabinet, as such, is unknown to British law. But whilst supreme power was thus vested in it the Cabinet could only exercise that power on condition that, and only so long as it controlled parliament. Parliamentary representatives were ordinary citizens elected by their fellows presumably because they possessed, to a high degree, the usual traits of British character, including a love of order and a passion for individual liberty. But to guard against any lapse on the part of these representatives they were given but a short tenure of office at the end of which they had to give a satisfactory account of their stewardship on pain of dismissal. Thus the two great contributions to the welfare of humanity made by the British people, the Common Law and Responsible Government have each their roots in distinctive traits of British character.

"But responsible government will not work automatically as is amply proven by its failure in many continental countries. There are at present at least six dictatorships in Europe established on the ruins of responsible governments.

AGREEMENT BY COMPROMISE

"By its very nature responsible government requires agreement on a given course of action by a considerable number of persons, else it ends in stalemate, if not in chaos," his lordship said. "Human nature being what it is, such agreement is unattainable unless these individuals, and the nations they represent, are imbued with the spirit of compromise. Because this is another distinctive trait of character possessed by all British peoples, responsible government is a British flag whilst it has lasted, or at best worked imperfectly, amongst peoples by whom the idea of compromise is regarded as a sign of weakness and as an indication of a lack of a sense of logic.

ROOTED IN TOLERANCE

"But compromise can be a matter of daily practice only amongst a people who are by nature broadly tolerant and so we find tolerance to be another marked trait of British character. Perhaps you will permit a personal reference in proof of that assertion. I have made the study of governments somewhat of a hobby and I state, as my deliberate conclusion, that only in the British Empire can men and nations live and move and have their being in untrammelled individual liberty, because nowhere else is there such broad tolerance of individual opinions—nay, even of individual prejudices.

The only qualification is that these opinions and prejudices shall not result in the invasion of the rights of others. A great historian, Mommsen, if this is true, stated the criterion of the degree of liberty which exists in any country is its treatment of minorities. Ponder well that saying. If it be true, and I think it is, then I know whereof I speak when I say that true liberty exists beneath the British flag.

FAIR PLAY

"And finally let me mention a trait that in a sense comprises all the others, the British sense of fair play, of a square deal for all, what the British call 'playing the game.' And it may be that expression gives a clue, if not the origin of this trait, at any rate to its strong development in British national character. The British addition to sport is proverbial. They love to play games and they love to witness games but only if they are played fairly according to the rules and if they are played not so much for the sake of victory as for the love of the game themselves. Calmness, the readiness to restore conditions when the game is being lost, no undue elation in victory, cheerfulness under defeat and a handclasp of good fellowship with the victors—these are the features of British sport. Any deviation from them, particularly the taking of any unfair advantage is not only condemned, it is execrated. When the British wish to express their sternest reprobation of a particular act they say 'That's not cricket, that's not playing the game,' he pointed out. "It was their spirit of fair play that drew the British into the World War at the early stage at which they entered it and thus preserved the world from a military overlordship. Leaders of the British Government did not dare to definitely align Great Britain against the Central Powers, for they were aware they would not be supported by the unanimous voice of the people. The British common sense bent of mind was in operation. The world had not gone mad. So reasoned that attitude changed and the whole Empire simultaneously sprang to arms. What caused this sudden metamorphosis? The rape of Belgium by Germany. That deed outraged the British sense of fair play. It was not cricket. It was not playing the game. Because from the British point of view those who do such things must be called to stern account, the British people, from August 4, 1914, to November 11, 1918, as Kipling expresses it, doggedly 'trod the wine press of the wrath of God.'

face contradictions, its enemies expected it to break to pieces at their first onslaught. Instead to their utter amazement and consternation, the phalanx of its unshakable citizenry, from every clime and of every race, civilization, color and religion, enthusiastically ready to die and who did—in fact, die by the million that the Empire might live.

"So long as the British peoples exhibit and assiduously cultivate those traits of character, just so long will that Empire continue to exist and prosper. Just so long will its nationals continue to say of it: 'Whether thou goest I will go; where thou shalt dwell I also will dwell; Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God.' Just so long will it continue to stand to be the terror of tyrants; the safe asylum of the persecuted; the strong protection of the weak and helpless; the mighty guarantor of true individual liberty, alike to the meekest as to the most exalted of its citizens."
